Doctors Say Ike Physically Able To Serve Again

They Also Report Possibility He Might Have Died If They Had Not Performed Intestinal Surgery

WASHINGTON, June 9 (AP)—President Eisenhower's doctors said today he came through his emergency operation so well that he can be fully active in four to six weeks and can run for re-election if he wants to.

They also reported there was a possibility he might have died if they had not performed the operation, which they decided on at an extraordinary postmidnight conference of 13 surgeons and physicians.

They found no cancer, said Gen. Leonard Heaton, commandant of Walter Reed Hospital and one of the four surgeons who operated on the President early today for an intestinal obstruction.

Dr. Heaton acted as spokesman for the doctors at a hospital news conference in midafternoon.

A reporter asked whether he saw any reason Eisenhower should not run for re-election.

"I certainly do not," Dr. Heaton replied. "I am sure that I speak for all the doctors at the table."

He offered this timetable:

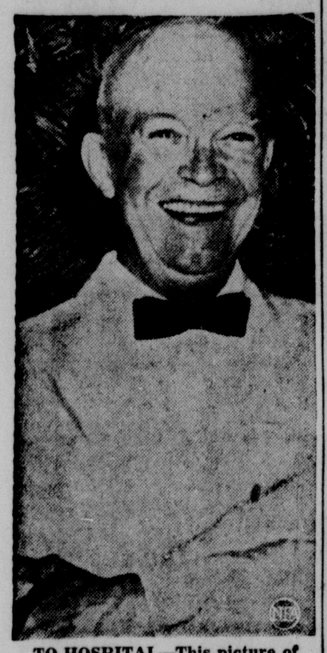

Eisenhower can see members of his staff Monday or Tuesday and begin tackling his lighter duties; he can leave the hospital in about 15 days, go to a spot of his own choosing for a period of convalescence; and "should be able to return to his full duties at the White House in four to six weeks from now."

Six weeks from now would be July 21, about a month before the Republican National Convention opens in San Francisco on Aug. 20. Far more than enough delegates to give him renomination were long ago pledged to him.

Another of the four surgeons who performed the predawn operation of an hour and 53 minutes, Dr. Isidor Ravdin of the Univsity of Pennsylvania, concurred in Dr. Heaton's report.

"I see no reason why the President should not make a complete recovery and go ahead with the full duties of the presidency," Dr. Ravdin said. "He should be better off now than he was previously."

Dr. Heaton also said there was no evidence of any connection between Eisenhower's heart attack of last Sept. 24 and his present illness. As for any effect the operation may have on Eisenhower's life expectancy, he said "We think it improves it."

State Aid To Schools Falls Short

JEFFERSON CITY, June 9—(AP)—Missouri's state aid allotments to the public schools were $18,425,717 short of the full amounts called for under the new "foundation plan," Hubert Wheeler reported today.

The state commissioner of education figured that full allotments under the plan approved by the voters last October should have added up to $73,040,680 during the school year just ended.

Instead, allotments paid to the schools actually totalled $54,614,963. That was almost $8 million more than in the previous school year, Wheeler said, but still was meeting the foundation plan at only 74.5 per cent.

Two factors cut the amount somewhat this first year.

Last year the legislature raised the automatic allotment of school money from one-third 33⅓ per cent of general revenue to 37½ per cent. But the increase was effective for only eight months in this year's school money.

Last October the voters approved a tax on cigarettes of two cents on each package with the estimated $9 million a year in revenue all earmarked for public school financing. It became effective last Jan. 1 so the school got only two months' revenue from that source.

Wheeler did not project those new revenues to a full year basis to show what might have been the situation if both new sources of school money had been operative for 12 months.

The money was apportioned to 3,772 eligible school district. But 300 other districts did not get state aid because local school taxes did not meet the foundation plan's minimum of $1 per $100 assessed valuation.

Louisiana Man Dies In Truck Accident

LOUISIANA, Mo., June 9 (AP)—Jewel Edward McCormick, 38, of Louisiana, was killed last night in a collision between his pickup truck and a truck on State Highway 79 about four miles north of here.

McCormick's truck overturned after the collision. Richard T. Taylor, 28, of Mexico, Mo., driver of the other truck, escaped injury.

Striped Worms Are Reported in Area

Two reports have come to the Extension Office of stripped worms eating the foliage off evergreens. They are apparently the larva of the pine sawfly. The name comes from the sawlike apparatus that the female uses to make slits in the needles in which to deposit her eggs.

While the insect prefers pine trees they do attack some other conifers. If power sprayers are used, spray with 1½ pounds actual DDT, or two pounds actual toxaphene per 100 gallons of water. In small sprayers use two tablespoons of 50 per cent DDT wettable powder, or two tablespoons methoxychlor wettable powder, or two tablespoons of 65 per cent toxaphene emulsifiable concentrate per gallon of water.

Carpenter Quits Race For Governor

Lists Work Load, Health, Few Funds Among His Reasons

JEFFERSON CITY, June 9—(AP)—L. C. Carpenter announced tonight he is withdrawing as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Carpenter had a comprehensive physical examination in Kansas City earlier this week. He said in a statement "after analyzing the results of my recent physical checkup my physician advises me to slow down."

Carpenter is state commissioner of agriculture but recently took a leave of absence from that office. He said a drought emergency in the northern part of Missouri was so serious that "I feel it my duty to be ready to help the people of the state."

His withdrawal leaves three other candidates in the race for the Democratic nomination. They are Lt. Gov. James T. Blair Jr., of Jefferson City; Roy E. Glodewell of Salem, and Charles A. Lee, Webster Groves.

Carpenter listed a number of reasons for his action.

For one thing, he said, "My financial resources would not permit" a large expenditure for television and radio time and newspaper and billboard advertising.

He also expressed fear that misinterpretations would be placed on his statement as a candidate.

"An illustration of this," he said, "are recent news reports which implied that I was attacking Gov. Donnelly. This I have not done and will not do under any circumstances. I have always been loyal to my superiors and I certainly have the highest regard for the present governor of our state."

Carpenter said he also was concerned about the work of the state department of agriculture and its job of putting new laws into effect. He said this also influenced his decision to withdraw.

"The Missouri state fair will require much of my time during the next two months," he said, "but of much more urgency is the drought condition, particularly in the northern part of the state, which may become wrose during the hot summer months. In the face of such impending emergency I feel it my duty to be ready to help the people of the state.

"A further motivation for this withdrawal, which my family considered important, is a pledge I made to them when I first decided to enter the campaign. I promised them not to pursue this campaign beyond the point where my health would be adversely affected. After analyzing the results of my recent physical checkup, my physician advises me to slow down."

Garden Clubs Take Tour of Nine Gardens After Meeting Friday

Members of the nine garden clubs learned a great deal about how other people grew roses, perennials, annuals, and even wild flowers as they toured nine gardens Friday afternoon after their meetings.

The gardens were all a riot of color and there was often heard expressions of "What is this?" "I must have this" and "Mine don't look like that. How did you get it to grow so big?"

The tour was from 2:30 to 5 p.m. and the gardens visited were Mrs. John Bohon, 1211 South Carr; Mrs. W. C. Cain, 1213 South Carr, Mrs. Herbert Seifert, 1701 West 11th; Mrs. Ed Brummet, 1401 East 14th; Mrs. J. D. Johnson, 1816 West Fifth; Mrs. F. W. Koenig, 1016 West Broadway; Mrs. W. Schweimer, 1120 East Tenth; Mrs. Paul Read, Route 4 and Mrs. Courtis Howard, 623 East 16th.

It was really a party affair and the women kept meeting the same people at the various gardens, but now and then they would run across groups that they hadn't seen before during the afternoon.

A description of the gardens will be given later.

Navy Jet Plane Crashes Southeast Of Whiteman AFB; Pilot Is Killed

Narrowly Misses Two Youths On Tractor, Planting Field

Lt. Bruce T. Bathurst, 30, U. S. Naval Reserve officer, pilot of a Navy F9F Cougar single jet engine plane was killed when his plane crashed on the farm of O. O. Ginn, route 3, Knob Noster, 3½ miles southeast of the Whiteman Air Force Base, Saturday about 3:30 p. m. The pilot was killed instantly.

Lt. Roy Borgstrom, public information officer at the Olathe Naval Air Station, Kan., where the F9F Cougar was stationed, reported the plane, K-105, was piloted by Lt. Bathurst on a routine training mission. A second plane was on the flight with the plane in the fatal crash and its pilot reported the crash to the Whiteman AFB control tower.

The second pilot, who was identified as Lt. (j.g.) John D. Granzella, was reported as saying, "The plane suddenly went into a dive and did not recover." It was also reported Lt. Granzella was in radio communication just before the crash but no information was released as to what the conversation between the two pilots was.

The Whiteman AFB tower saw the smoke as the plane crashed and immediately called all emergency fire department equipment and started it on the route to the crash. Lt. Granzella returned to the scene and circled above until the emergency equipment arrived on the scene, and then he headed back to Olathe. His safe return at Olathe was confirmed.

Lt. Bathurst's plane crashed in the east end of a plowed field on the Ginn farm. As it crashed into the ground it dug a hole about 15 feet in diameter and about three feet deep. As the plane struck, it disintegrated and was scattered westward for a distance of nearly 400 feet. The jet engine was turned into a twisted mass of metal, while the tail rudder was the only large piece of the plane that was left, it being next to the engine.

The body was burned beyond recognition.

A report of the crash first came from Mrs. Clarence Lyle, Route 3, whose husband's farm is about three miles south of the air base. She told The Democrat she had just gone to the kitchen door when she saw the plane heading straight down toward the ground. It disappeared behind the trees in the distance and she saw a huge burst of flame but heard no explosion. She raced for her telephone and called the air base.

Her two sons, James, 20, and Glenn, 16, jumped into an automobile and raced to the scene. James told The Democrat he saw wreckage scattered all over and some of it was burning but not as much as he expected. He said he and his brother left for home before the firefighters got there.

The plane crashed in a field which had recently been plowed and which was being planted in milo by Robert Beard, 15, son of William Beard, who rents the farm from Ginn, assisted by Jack Hoffman, 14. Robert said the plane hit about 300 feet away from him as he and Jack turned their tractor to head back to the house. He said he heard a whistle and looked behind him just in time to see the plane strike the ground and explode in a burst of flame. Robert and Jack jumped into a ditch and then ran to the wreckage. Robert's father said he considered the boys extremely lucky not to have been hurt or killed.

When the alarm was sounded Col. Charles V. Neil, base commander, and Col. A. J. Beck, commander of the 340th Bomb Wing at the base, rushed to the scene to give their assistance. The fire equipment from the base extinguished the fire.

Ambulances from the base also arrived at the scene and stood by until after the arrival of Dr. C. G. Stauffacher, Pettis County coroner, arrived on the scene. Dr. Stauffacher said an inquest was not necessary and released the body to be removed from the scene. The body was taken to the Whiteman AFB and later Saturday night to the Gillespie Funeral Home in Sedalia.

Capt. H. D. Rody and Capt. C. W. Harter, of the 340th Bomb Wing were flying back to the Whiteman AFB from Patterson AFB, Dayton, O., when they saw the smoke from the crash, gave its location to the tower and circled around the area

Harriman Hat Is Tossed Into the Ring

He Ends Inactive Candidacy; Contrary To Dubinsky Plea

NEW YORK, June 9 (AP)—Gov. Averell Harriman of New York actively entered the race today for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Tossing an old gray fedora into the air, he told the Hat Workers Union convention:

"I want to say to you that this hat is in the ring."

Harriman, an exponent of the new deal and fair deal philosophies of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman, previously had described himself as an inactive candidate.

His announcement apparently was prompted by a suggestion before the same convention yesterday by David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, that Harriman withdraw from consideration and support Adlai Stevenson.

Harriman's statement made it clear that he intends to fight to the end for the nomination.

His announcement came the same day that President Eisenhower underwent an operation that raised speculation as to whether he would run for a second term as expected.

Harriman, 64, compared with Eisenhower's 65, himself had been in a hospital recently for a prostate gland operation described as minor.

His announcement also followed closely on the heels of Stevenson's primary victories that placed the former Illinois governor, the 1952 Democratic candidate in a strongly contending position for this year's nomination.

The Governor, formerly an ambassador to Moscow and to London and a former secretary of commerce, told the convention:

"I believe in the unity of the Democratic party — yes — but I believe in the unity of the party as a liberal Democratic party."

Navy Jet Fighter Hits Row of Houses, Kills Six Persons

MINNEAPOLIS, June 9—(AP)—A crippled Navy jet fighter, struggling desperately to reach the airfield, crashed and exploded in a row of frame houses today, killing the pilot and five other persons. At least a dozen were injured.

The Panther Jet, pilot by a Marine air reservist, plowed into a home just north of Wold-Chamberlain Field and showered flaming fuel on five other houses in the same block.

Seven children, among nearly 20 playing in the yards, ran screaming to their parents, their clothes afire. Five youngsters under eight were critically burned. The other two suffered superficial hurts. Five adults were treated for shock and minor injuries.

The John D. Garies home, where the plane struck, was demolished in an orange fireball. Five bodies, including that of Maj. George E. Armstrong, 33, Minneapolis, the pilot, were removed from the house.

A deputy coroner said the bodies of the four civilians taken from the demolished homes were those of Garies, his wife, Janet, both in their 30s and two of their children, Mark, 6, and Bryan, 2. The only survivor of the family, Joel, 11, was fishing with a group of friends.

On Top of Earlier House Reduction—

Sen. Russell Calls for Another Billion Dollar Cut in Ike's Foreign Aid Program

WASHINGTON, June 9 (AP)—President Eisenhower's embattled foreign aid bill ran into new trouble today when Sen. Russell (D-Ga) called for "another billion dollar" slash in the program.

The House chopped $1,100,000,000 out of the $4,900,000,000 bill this week, despite efforts by administration supporters in both parties to stem the tide. Final showdown votes are due in the House Monday.

Russell, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee which will pass on actual funds to carry out the program later, said this is not enough.

"It ought to be reduced another billion dollars," he told a reporter.

Russell's Democratic colleague from Georgia, Chairman George of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, lined up with the administration.

George said he personally favors restoring "about 500 million dollars of the House cut, with most of this to go to the European military aid."

George conceded this faces an uphill battle in the Senate, saying: "There is some sentiment to cut even deeper than the House did."

The administration asked 760 millions of new funds for European military aid, but the House cut this back nearly 360 millions.

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ), a ranking GOP members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is expected to lead the administration effort to restore both military and economic funds in the Senate.

George has asked the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to begin closed-door voting on the big bill Wednesday.

Secretary of State Dulles carried the administration fight to the Midwest today with a speech at Iowa State College in which he declared "it is risky to seek bargain counter prices" when dealing with the country's peace and security.

"Cut prices may not save money—except by increasing the risk of war," he said.

Dulles said the United States must be prepared, perhaps for many years, to pay about 40 billion dollars a year for what he called "a peace insurance policy." He said this includes 36 billion a year for defense and 4 billion for military and economic aid to friendly nations.

Zilenski's Mystery Watch Operates on Swing Shift

DAYTON, Maine (AP) — Joe Zilenski has an odd, fan-shaped watch — but it won't tell him anything but the time and that's not what the 39-year old farmer wants to know.

Instead of a round or square face, the watch has a dial like an automobile gasoline gauge. It runs from left to right and the stubby hands spring back to the left to start their journey to the right anew after every cycle.

PUZZLE — Why should anyone make this kind of watch, asks Joe Zilenski.

What Zilenski wants to know is why would anyone make such a watch?

He has tried to get the answer. He started by asking the homeowner on top of whose trash barrel the disabled chronometer was found back in 1932 at Pine Orchard, Conn., while he was living at Branford, Conn.

He got nowhere. So he tried watchmakers everywhere he was stationed while he was in military service for more than four years.

Joe spent $38 to have the watch repaired. He says he has refused a $550 offer for the curio from a New York jeweler. The latter does not know anything about it either.

The watch has a 21-jewel movement. Exterior markings include engraved lilies, a pastoral scene and the words "Holy Frs.," which he believes means Holy Friars. Inside are two engraved peacocks.

Zilenski says the watch may have been a gift to someone in a religious order and that it was meant to be carried around the neck.

The face bears the name "Elector Watch."

The only clue to its origin has been advanced by Louis E. Albert, a Portland jeweler. Albert said he saw the picture of a similar watch once in a magazine. It was one of a collection of old timepieces and was described as an English-made Sector, also known as "The Flirt."

Cure of roof-drainage system ills should be undertaken at least twice every year.

Home's Roof Drains Should Be Checked Twice Each Year

By MR. FIX

At least twice a year—in the spring and fall—you should check up on your home's roof-drainage system. This is one of the most essential home-maintenance chores. Also one of the easiest. There are four simple steps to take:

1. Sweep loose debris out of gutters. A putty knife will loosen caked mud. Flush out gutters and downspouts with a garden hose. Use a plumber's snake, if necessary.

2. Wirebrush or sandpaper rust spots and patch leaks in metal gutters, or replace beat-up gutter sections with new ones. Small leaks can be sealed with furnace cement or one of the quick-setting metallic putties. Solder loose and wobbly joints. Seal cracks in wood gutters with caulking compound.

3. Check the pitch of gutters, which should slope toward downspouts at the rate of one inch in 16 feet. Adjust or replace hangers if necessary to align the gutters.

4. Coat the inside of galvanized or wooden gutters with asphaltum paint, and the outside of all gutters with house paint.

Regular seasonal inspection is not the only form of protection against future roof-drainage troubles. Another is a product designed to keep gutters free of leaves, twigs and debris—the No. 1 troublemakers.

A wire-mesh covering which comes in three-foot strips, it is attached to gutters by means of built-in clamps. Installed so that they slope with the roof, the rust-resistant strips shed fallen objects as well as snow, which is supposed to ride right over them.

Made of galvanized metal with steel-bound edges so they'll stay flat and rigid, the screens may be installed over gutters made of wood or various metals.

The designers have tried to think of everything, including the prevention of corrosion caused by contact between two different metals. For installation on copper or aluminum gutters, the screens are available with clamp fasteners made of like metals.

Installation of the gutter screens is simple. You merely slip one edge under the first course of roof shingles, and bend clamps on the opposite edge over the front of gutters. The strips may be cut with tin snips and mitred to follow gutter around corners.

In addition to the roof-drainage system, other areas around the outside of your home should be inspected in the spring. Severe winters have a way of cracking concrete walks, loosening masonry and raising hob with roof shingles. These should be repaired before the damage worsens.

On your inspection tour, pay particular attention to the "weather," or windward, side. Here, paint takes a beating, and horizontal surfaces fare less well than verticel ones. You may have to repaint window sills or other ledges.

Winter's dirt can make a house look as if it needs a repaint job. Often a good scrubbing will restore its last year's appearance. Apart from ladders, all you need is a wide scrub brush and a detergent solution.

Safeway Official Started Career As Part-Time

From part-time employee at one of its smaller stores to manager of one of Safeway Stores' larger divisions has been the career of M. V. Witbeck, Safeway's Kansas City division manager, who announced his retirement last night.

At a special dinner for company executives at the Kansas City Club Thursday evening, Witbeck introduced his successor, Fred E. Rowland, who will take over division managership here June 18. Rowland has been manager of the company's Phoenix, Ariz. division for more than three years.

Witbeck decided to retire after completion last March of 30 years of service with Safeway Stores, but the announcement was delayed until administrative arrangements for the transfer of Rowland could be arranged.

Fred Rowland, the new Kansas City division manager, has been with Safeway Stores 22 years, starting as a salesman for the company at Little Rock, Arkansas, followed by advancements to executive positions in the Arkansas and Oklahoma operations of the company. He has been Phoenix Division manager since January, 1953, where he has been exceptionally active in community affairs.

Britain Gives Miners Chance to Save Jobs And Town's Industry

GWAUB-CAE-CURWEN, Wales (AP)—Britain's National Coal Board Saturday gave 279 exhausted miners in this Welsh village another chance to save their jobs and the town's coal industry.

Last month the board closed the local pit and fired its entire staff of 1,065 because of low production figures and a total of 249 strikes since 1947.

After an initial display of indifference, the local miners appealed for another chance.

"Open the pit for a fortnight and we'll show what we can do," they said.

The board relented and hired back 279 men for a two-week trial. If they reached an undisclosed target figure, officials said the pit would be reopened.

Toward the end of the second week, it was hinted that the diggers were not reaching their target. They put on a last-minute spurt.

Last night they learned they had missed the goal "by a hair's breadth," but had won the right to another week's trial.

If the pit closes permanently Gwaub-Cae-Curwen will become a ghost town—there's no other industry in the district and no hope of work without moving away.

In 1900 7½ million Americans owned their homes compared with 25 million today.

The Springfield activities started with a parade and the principal address at the ceremonial was made by Walter C. Guy, imperial potentate of North America.

Five Cars of People Leave While Police Wait for Warrant

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—Five carloads of persons roared out of a basement garage at the Silver Slipper Club Friday while state police surrounding the place were waiting for county authorities to arrive with a search warrant.

Police finally entered the club and reported they found gambling tables, chips and other gambling equipment. Three persons found in the club in Centerville Township, were arrested.

Pete Carbonatto, 53, and Joe Janko, 40, were booked at the county jail suspected of possessing gambling equipment. The third man was booked for disorderly conduct.

The garage was large enough to accomodate about 30 cars, police reported. Windows had been covered over with thick black paper, police said.

State police raiders, led by Capt. Elza Brantley, were joined by Sheriff Leonard O. Reinhardt and a deputy of St. Clair County.

An estimated 45 million Americans take vacations in their cars each year.

Rep. Coya Knutson Is Tops With Farmers, Capitol Hill

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— After delivering a speech in Minnesota several months ago, former President Harry Truman was greeted by Rep. Coya Knutson (D-Minn).

"I am very happy that you stressed so much the subject of the farm family," she explained.

"Coya, you should be happy," cracked Truman. "I took most of it from your farm speech."

Truman wasn't kidding. And he isn't the only politician who recognizes the astounding talents of Coya Knutson, a farm gal who can dazzle city and country folk alike.

Among her colleagues in both parties she has come to be considered one of the outstanding spokesmen for 90 per cent parity and the preservation of the family-type farm.

And today blonde-haired, dynamic Mrs. Knutson is the most talked about Congresswoman on Capitol Hill.

What really brought oldtimers to attention was her role in Sen. Estes Kefauver's stunning victory over Adlai Stvenson in the Minnesota presidential primary. It was a major coup for Coya.

Taking a great political risk, she bucked the powerful state Democratic organization and led the battle for the lanky Tennessee senator.

She personally plotted Kefauver's campaign across the state and went with him the whole way.

Everywhere Kefauver spoke Representative Knutson warmed up the audience and introduced him. Afterwards she pitched in to collect donations. A graduate of the Julliard School of Music in New York, she often sang and played the piano.

"Some critics said it wasn't respectable for a congresswoman to help collect money, but everyone loved her performance," says a Kefauver lieutenant.

"If it hadn't been for Coya, Kefauver might be a dead duck right now," is how one politician described her part in the campaign.

Actually, it was more the farm issue than the candidates themselves that influenced Mrs. Knutson to enter the contest.

"The farmers voted to endorse Senator Kefauver's farm program rather than to endorse a candidate," she explains.

Elected to Congress two years ago from Minnesota's ninth district, Representative Knutson is the first woman to serve on the House Agriculture Committee.

"If I accomplish no more during my stay in Congress than gaining recognition in the minds of people in our country of the distressing need to preserve the family-type farm, my mind would rest at ease," she says.

Although she realizes the legislative process takes time Representative Knutson says she still "gets impatient to get things done."

She's particularly concerned with the plight of the farm wife today. "Many of the women I have talked to and heard from tell me they have to do more physical work than ever before to help their husbands. Income is too low to hire help. This shouldn't be."

Mrs. Knutson lives with her 15-year-old son, Terry, who goes to school here. Her husband runs a business in their home town of Oklee, Minn.

Man Killed in Wreck

HAMILTON, Mo. (AP) — Gene Crum, 35, was killed and his wife and daughter injured when their car went out of control and left the highway about 15 miles south of here Friday night.

Mrs. Vera Crum and daughter Jean were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Kansas City in serious condition.

The Crum family had been visiting relatives at Jefferson City and Fulton and were en route home.

Woman Testifies She Saw Stolen Cattle

BILLINGS, MONT. (AP) — A Missouri woman testified Friday she saw nine of her registered Herefords in Hardin, Mont., last Aug. 18 after they had been stolen.

Rubie Charles Jenkins, 36, Vinita, Okla., is charged with transporting the cattle from Mrs. Janita H. Wallower's Mission Hills farm near Joplin, Mo., to Hardin. The animals were valued at $10,000.

Mrs. Wallower told a federal court jury she was distressed to see the cattle had been dehorned, branded and ear-marked. "I love those cattle," she said.

"PLATTER ANGEL" serves up meal in Philadelphia. Food and human contact are getting this old dster back on his feet.

By KENNETH GILMORE
NEA Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA — A new frontier is being explored to help keep the aged out of hospitals, institutions and poor farms.

Dramatically labeled "Meals On Wheels," it is geared to give uncared for and feeble old folks the dignity of living at home.

Essentially, that means eating. "Meals On Wheels" provides the answer by delivering a hot and a cold meal a day to those who are physically unable to buy and prepare their own food.

For more than two years now this program has been in operation in a thickly populated working class area in North Philadelphia. A Community Chest settlement house there called the Lighthouse undertook the project. It is patterned after a similar British experiment.

Officials at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington, who are groping to find solutions to the complex problems of America's aged, are impressed by the success of "Meals on Wheels."

They also realize this type of program will help reduce the large number of older persons who fall ill and require hospitalization for lack of proper diets.

Five days a week the Lighthouse delivers meals to a carefully screened group of old folks who are bedridden or partially disabled.

Through blizzards and sweltering summer heat volunteer workers supply the meals. Known now as "platter angels," they have never missed a delivery.

At least 40 volunteers make it possible for some 36 persons to receive food. Each day four delivery routes are worked out so that all meals arrive within a one-hour period. One person drives the delivery car and one or two others go along to serve.

A typical lunch may offer tomato soup, roast beef, creamed potatoes, peas and carrots, a cup cake and coffee. Supper might be a cold meat sandwich, a tomato and cookies. The meals are packed in oven heated, insulated bags.

This is not a mobile soup kitchen operation. The aged pay from 40 to 80 cents for the two meals.

A careful check of those who have benefitted by the program indicates that it is doing more than improving diets and preventing malnutrition. Coming into contact with the "platter angels" each day has greatly raised spirits.

Miss Margaret Toy of the Lighthouse staff reports that in the short space of a month after receiving food some of the old folks began to perk up noticeably. At the start all were physically weakened and mentally depressed for lack of good food and human contact.

"These old people will not only improve physically, but they will be able to learn better eating habits as a result of this project," says Dr. Stanley Tauber, director of the Nutrition Clinic of the Fife Hamill Health Center in Philadelphia. He is supervising a nutritional study of the persons participating in "Meals on Wheels."

Dr. Tauber feels that some of the information he uncovers will assist doctors who counsel elderly people on diets.

Nearly 90 per cent of all farm products go to initial markets by motor vehicle.

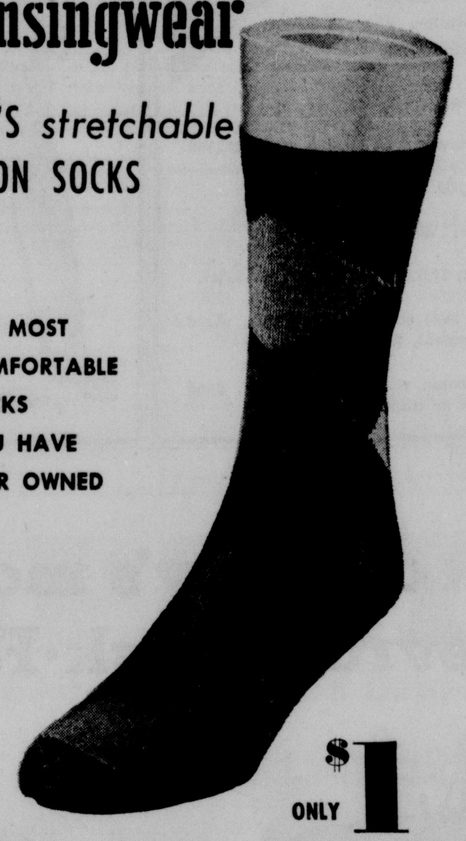

Marathon Law Course

DETROIT (AP)—Glenn Bennett is going to get his law degree from the University of Detroit after 24 years of squeezing in a course here and a course there during a police career climaxed by promotion to head of the Detroit arson squad. Bennett, 41, started out after a law degree in 1932, but the depression and the rearing of four children slowed up his book work.

Regional Library Notes—

Bookmobile Has Variety Of Books on Cooking, Diet

June is dairy month. Dairy foods — milk, butter and cheese are a very important part of our diet. Good bones and teeth, energy, and general well being are dependent on a balanced diet. So the home maker must plan her menus to take care of these needs. To help with this important problem, the library can provide many cookbooks, books on diet and on nutrition in general. These cookbooks are of all types, ranging from directions for the youngest girls to make cocoa to the most intricate of cake decorations or foreign cookery.

Among the more useful books for the average mother are Rombauer's "Joy of Cooking", "Betty Crocker's Picture Cook Book", the Better Homes and Garden's "New Cook Book", Fannie Farmer's "Boston Cooking School Cook Book." If you are looking for something special, don't be discouraged. There are such books as Tracy's "Favorite Regional Recipes of America", Worth's "Down on the Farm Cook Book" and Marvin Small's "The World's Best Recipes". "The Best Cookery in the Middle West", "Southern Cook Book", and "Grandma's Cooking" pretty much explain their coverage.

The "Summer Cook Book", "The Salad Book" and "Potluck Cookery" may interest the homemaker who wishes to balance her menu and still cook a light meal. Those who are ailing may wish to see some of the books concerning "Good Food for Bad Stomachs." Salt free and low sodium diets are included in cook books in the Boonslick Library. An invitation to look over the cook books is especially given all homemakers right now.

The University of Missouri and the U. S. Department of Agriculture have some of the best available information on foods and methods of freezing them. Home freezing of fruits and vegetables, meat, fish and poultry are in pamphlet form and may be checked out of the library. Directions for using nonfat dry milk solids in home prepared foods, for making homemade breads and rolls and other fine helps for feeding the family in the best possible way are available in government publications. These may be borrowed from the Boonslick Library. A homemaker is a production engineer. She must know the very best methods and latest scientific findings in order to do her best for her family.

Benton Says US Must Avoid New Surpluses

RUTLAND, Vt. (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson said Saturday that once present farm surpluses are disposed of, "we must avoid—as we would a plague—other policies and programs" that would create new oversupplies.

In a speech prepared for the Vermont State Dairy Festival, he said that the government's new soil bank program is designed to bring farm production into balance with markets by 1959.

"I must emphasize," he said, "that it is not a program to empty government bins and warehouses so they may be filled again. It is a temporary, emergency program to get farm production and our markets back in balance."

Benson said the surpluses, now worth more than nine billion dollars, were accumulated under price support policies which served, he said, to encourage overproduction.

The secretary said the dairy situation—unlike that of some of the major crops — is enormously brighter than it was two years ago. At that time, he said, dairy farmers and the government alike were "rapidly becoming buried under an increasing mountain of unsold dairy products."

He said the dairy industry has improved its position by means of sales promotion campaigns and by increasing its efficiency of production.

School of Mines Will Start Construction

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — McCarthy Brothers Construction Co. of St. Louis will start work immediately on a dormitory and cafeteria at the Rolla School of Mines. The dormitory will house 350 students and both buildings are expected to be completed in 14 to 16 months.

Mother of Slain Boys Is Married Again

CHICAGO (AP) — Mrs. Eleanor Schuessler, 38, whose two young sons were slain eight months ago and whose husband died a month later, was married Friday.

Her new husband is Valentine Kujawa, 37-year-old widower and father of two children, who said he has known Mrs. Schuessler 17 years. At the request of the couple, the doors of St. Tarcissus Roman Catholic Church were locked and only seven relatives attended the brief wedding ceremony.

Mrs. Schuessler's two sons, John 13 and Anton Jr., 11, and Robert Peterson, 14, were found beaten and strangled in a Northwest Side forest ditch last Oct. 18. Her husband, Anton Sr., 42, who closed his tailor shop to help search for the slayers, died of a heart attack. The murders have not been solved.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — The customers' register at Bert Gorham's gas station contains names from seven foreign countries and 46 states.

One of the missing states is Connecticut because, Bert says, he's not interested in any home state signatures until "one of those real Connecticut beauty queens comes along."

Lawrence Geiger Residence Is One of Attractive Homes

Although not one of the new houses, the home of Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence S. Geiger, 1520 West Broadway, is among the most attractive in Sedalia. It faces the south and is of dark red brick.

The front door opens into a small hall with a table against the north wall over which hangs a mirror.

The large living room on the east is full of color with beautiful sectional furniture that gives the rounded effect, on one side of the room the upholstery is in rose and on the other side green. The walls are white and the wall to wall carpeting is a soft green shade. On the east side is an exquisite fireplace of solid mahogany like the rest of the woodwork in the home which is stained dark. Above the mantel is a large oil painting. The curtains at the windows in this room, as well as other rooms over the house, are very lovely, of a thin white material embroidered.

Off of the living room east is a nice screened in porch the Geigers enjoy during the warm weather. It, too, has an inviting atmosphere with its white furniture and its glass top table beneath which may be seen a potted white gloxinia.

The dining room of the home is spacious with exactly the kind of dining room furniture that belongs in such a room. The furniture is mahogany with also a half table against the wall under the window.

The kitchen of the home is very colorful and the trim of the white curtains pick up the colors in the kitchen paper.

The bedroom, which parallels the living room of the home is very large and at the front is an attractive fireplace. On the floor is a light green carpet and at the windows white curtains. Antique furniture has been used in this room in a very effective manner and particularly pretty are the needlepoint chairs. This room has a large closet and two doors, one which goes into the front hall and the other into a hall in the center of the west side of the house. The hall has two or three steps down to a side door which opens onto the driveway. This entrance is used a great deal by the Geigers and their friends since it is so easy to drive up to the door and go in. From the driveway to the front door is quite a few steps farther but a cement walk curves gracefully around the shrubbery making a very pretty front entrance.

One of the most interesting places about the home is the den which is off the middle hall to the back. It is in green with a desk, a green sofa and chairs. The den tells a story of a very delightful trip the Geigers took with pictures on the wall, and framed certificates given them when they crossed the equator. At the windows are deep beige curtains.

The bathroom of the home is in gray with gray tile and a very different thing about it is the two lavatories.

The house, which like the homes on Broadway, sets a distance back from the highway, has a nice lawn and large trees in the yard. There are shrubs and flowers around giving it a pretty setting.

About Town

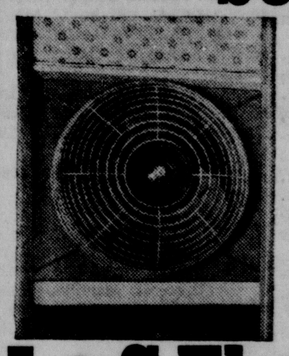

Here from out-of-town to attend the funeral services for Lewis W. Ison last week were Mrs. Ida E. McDaniel, Troy McDaniel, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hader, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Pruitt, all of California; Mr. and Mrs. Golder Bruce, William Pardoe Jr., and Jewel Bliss all of Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. Will Pardoe, Latham, Miss Louise Wermels and Mrs. T. C. Amos, Russellville.

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Silverman and daughters, Mimi, DeeDee and Macky, 1101 South New England Drive, have returned from Sun Valley, Idaho, where Mr. Silverman attended the 25th anniversary meeting of the Leaders Association of New England Life Insurance Co., the members of which are outstanding agents of the company.

The Silvermans camped along the way, with tent, charcoal burner, sleeping bags and air mattresses. Abe did the cooking, steaks, hamburgers, all kinds of good food, and he and their three daughters thoroughly enjoyed it. When it came to his wife, Jean, — well, she wasn't so sure, that is, when it came to sleeping in a tent during the night.

It was in Yellowstone National Park that Abe began to wonder about sleeping out, too. When they first got there a bear climbed onto the trailer and snooped around for food. They were then advised to keep any food they had locked in the car at night, which they did. It was a rather creepy feeling, said Abe, to wake up in the night because of the sniffling in your ear of a bear just outside your tent. Jeanie heard it, too, but she wasn't much more scared than Abe himself as he clutched the ax he had taken to bed with him — but then —that all comes with the fun of camping out, unexpected visitors in the night. But, now that the Silvermans are home and the trip and the bears are just memories, they agree that it was really something different and a real vacation. It was from one extreme to the other, roughing it all the way out and then living like millionaires during the convention in Sun Valley.

Ellis, Howe Are Named Delegates

Mrs. Estelle Ellis and Mrs. Mabel Howe, teachers at Broadway School, have been named as delegates to represent the Sedalia Community Teachers Association at the 94th annual convention of the National Education Association in Portland, Ore., July 1-6.

This year will be the first time in 20 years that the "City of Roses" has played host to an annual convention of the NEA which, with its membership of three quarters of a million, is the largest professional organization of teachers in the world.

The delegate body at the convention will consist of 5,500 members of state and local education associations who have been selected to represent their communities. Delegates will come from all the 48 states and the District of Columbia, Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico.

Eric Johnston, roving ambassador to the Middle East and former "czar" of the motion picture industry, will be one of the major speakers during the five-day meeting. American Legion Commander J. Addington Wagner and Mrs. Rollin T. Brown, national PTA president, will extend greetings from their respective organizations, and the U.S. Commissioner of Education Samuel Brownell, also will welcome delegates.

J. Lester Buford, superintendent of schools, Mt. Vernon, Ill., who has headed the NEA for the past year, will deliver the presidential address at one of the general assembly sessions. The closing address will be given by Lee DuBridge, president, California Institute of Technology.

The convention will open with a vesper service with Bishop Gerald Kennedy, Methodist Church, Los Angeles, California, officiating. The following four days will be devoted to business and general assembly sessions and meetings of the NEA departments, committees and commissions.

Some of the convention highlights include: a chuck wagon dinner and entertainment at Jantzen Beach Park, sponsored by the Department of Classroom Teachers, and the American Overseas Educators' dinner. A premiere showing of the latest NEA public relations film "A Desk for Billie," is also scheduled. This film is based on the Saturday Evening Post story "I Was a Hobo Kid," by Billie Davis, well-known writer and lecturer, who in recent years was a speaker in Sedalia.

100 Will Take Tour of Nearby Cities Tuesday

The guests for the tour of nearby cities which will be given Tuesday, June 12, by the Missouri Public Service Co., will start with a coffee and doughnut session at Bothwell Hotel at 8 a.m. The air-conditioned buses will leave the hotel promptly at 8:30.

William B. Rich, district manager, stated that 100 people will make the trip, the first 100 to make reservations. The number was limited because no more can be accommodated on this tour but many reservations came in after the deadline of Friday, June 1, and those will be included in another tour planned for this fall in September or October. Those who found it impossible to go at this time or who made reservations too late will be listed for the fall trip.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce were invited to take the tour which will go first to a large coal mine, then to Clinton for a view of the Missouri Public Service electric generating plant and modern water plant. After lunch at Clinton they will continue on to Pleasant Hill for an inspection of the new outdoor type electric generating plant after which they will continue to Grandview Air Force Base for refreshments and dinner at the Officers' Club. They will then return to Sedalia.

Truman, suffering from a slight cold, told his guide, "I was in Chartres during World War I and got within two blocks of the cathedral but I never got to see it. That is why I wanted to come back now."

Informed by accompanying newsmen that President Eisenhower's operation was a success, Truman said:

Circuit Court

Under Circuit Court notes in Friday's Democrat an item appeared concerning the filing of a divorce petition by Ruby A. Wagner against Robert A. Wagner. Incorrectly the Democrat reported that Mrs. Wagner's petition alleged that Wagner is married to another woman, whereas the petition actually alleged general indignities. The mistake was made by a reporter inadvertently making a transposition in copying information from petitions on file in the circuit clerk's office. In Mrs. Wagner's petition no allegation of bigamy was made against Wagner, who is not married to another woman.

The Sedalia Democrat regrets this error and extends its apologies for making such a distressing mistake.

Charles G. Schmidt filed a petition for $10,000 damages against Dorothy Huffman Curry. The injuries were allegedly received in an accident on April 28 at Third and Massachusetts when a car driven by Dorothy Huffman Curry collided with a car driven by Charles G. Schmidt. Lamm and Barnet are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Broadway, Ohio Traffic Lights Changed Friday

The traffic signal lights at Broadway and Ohio have been readjusted and went into effect Friday afternoon under a new system of making left hand turns.

The cycle of the lights is 60-seconds.

Starting with the red light on east and west traffic on Broadway, the light changes to red with the green arrow, thus permitting east and west traffic to make a left turn, the east bound to turn north on Ohio while the west bound is making the turn south on Ohio simultaneously, this is for nine seconds; the amber or warning light burns for three seconds; the Green light for through traffic comes on and both east and west bound traffic moves this is for 20 seconds. During the operation of the east west traffic cycle the red light holds north and south bound traffic. This operation holds for 35-seconds.

Then the north south bound traffic cycle comes on and green arrow and red light burns for the left hand turns for 8.4 second, south bound traffic to turn to the east on Broadway and the north bound traffic to turn to the west on Broadway simultaneously. The amber light comes on for three second; then the green light for through traffic north and south comes on for 9.6 seconds; then the amber light for three seconds or approximately 24 seconds.

A study of this traffic movement is to be made before any police action is taken, thus to give the motoring public who have become accustomed to the previous settings can adjust themselves to the change.

It's a way of HOLDING HANDS FOREVER

The chances are nearly three to one that your wife will survive you. If she does she will have over a hundred heart-rending duties to perform all within twenty-four hours.

There is no finer way to prove your devotion than to suggest that you perform two of those duties now, together, rather than leave them for her to do alone.

Summer Session Starts June 18—

More Volunteer Workers Are Needed at Children's Center

They sat silently watching the film, the story of a young father who was proud of the small accomplishments of his cerebral palsied son. They listened to various speakers tell something of the plans for the opening of a new session of the Crippled Children's Center on June 18. But these women did not need to be sold on the work at the Center and the time they are asked to give free to children who cannot talk and run and play as their own have done.

These were the volunteer workers who had been giving time, two hours a week, and they felt that their pay was far greater than money with every slow accomplishment of the child that had been assigned to them one day a week. There are more workers needed and this would probably be a good medicine for those who cannot get their minds off of their own troubles and ailments. All one needs to qualify is love and patience but it takes a lot of both.

The group, gathered at the Crippled Children's Center located in the basement of the Nurses Home at Bothwell Hospital, was serious for the most part talking over the needs, the progress and the dispositions of the little folks they were trying to help, but there was laughter and enthusiasm, too, perhaps the most of the latter coming from the ideas for a rhythm band given by a Mrs. Guilbault, wife of a Whiteman Air Force man. An assistant at the Center to Mrs. Rudolph Swope, director, Mrs. Guilbault showed the instruments that she had decided could be made after she saw pictures in a book of instruments that could be purchased to help children use their hands and have fun at the same time.

"This is a tambourine," she said, holding up two paper plates of pastel colors that had been sewed together and had flattened bottle caps attached.

"Mr. Gault" she told the group, "flattened the bottle caps for us." Walter Gault is the new physical therapist.

Mrs. Guilbault shook the tambourine above her head and the bottle caps made music just like a real tambourine. Then she shook the wooden paddle from which the rubber ball had been taken and in its place had been attached more flattened bottle caps. Then there were the drum sticks, sticks that had been padded at one end then covered with a sock. Where was she going to get the drums? But Mrs. Guilbault had that figured out, too. Empty oatmeal boxes sounded pretty good as drums. Then there were the two pieces of wood, each with a piece of sand paper fastened on it and rubbed together they made a noise that would add to the music.

What the rhythm band would sound like she didn't know, but the music is not the important part of this band, it is the good that will come out of it by having the youngsters use their hands and arms.

Walter Gault then made a short talk on "What Is Physical Therapy?" Physical therapy, said Gault means work under medical doctors orders. He told of heat-light, water deep breathing, massage and exercises.

Other women who have been working at the Center talked of things that had been done and plans being made. Frequently Mrs. Swope explained methods used or things they hoped to accomplish in the future.

Now and then it seemed that everybody talked. A favorite youngster of them all was Jackie Jarvis. Jackie is in her teens, a happy child and cooperative. She has shown great improvement and on the specially built table where the children may stand and work so that their legs are strengthened, was a display of work, among them Jackie's. She sews nicely, there was a little apron, some embroidery work and woven pot holders around which she crochets. She makes the pot holders to sell.

There were many handicraft articles on the table made by all of the children and among them were wooden plaques with bright birds, flowers or scenes on them. The wood must be thoroughly sandpapered first, then varnished, then the pictures put on.

"I get so tired of this old sandpapering," said one boy recently. For to him it is a job of making a plaque not of treatment.

Now there will be the kindergarten group and the older group. The kindergarten group will go only in the morning and at that time the older group will have lessons. There will be lunch, then the older group will have physical therapy and handicraft during the afternoon.

What is needed by these children who cannot do the things most children can do? Love and affection, acceptance and understanding, security, independence, protection, and the ability to control the normal emotions that are in everybody, jealousy and anger. They need praise and encouragement.

"I feel like I am doing nothing more than being a baby sitter," commented one woman.

"Oh, no," replied Mrs. Virginia Flower, president of the Crippled Children Center board, "You may not see it, but the improvement is great in the child you are helping, and even if it wasn't the time spent would be very worthwhile because of the opportunity for these children to have social contacts with other children and with grownups."

From the Crippled Children's Center the little hands, not strong and straight and grasping as most children, but unsteadily are held out to those who will give time to brighten their lives and help them to a better way of life.

Tools Working Together....

In these summer days of conventions and conferences there are occasions when extreme hot weather tends to try the patience of participants and leaders. They come to cross purposes over each other's importance in the proceedings. Some bad feelings arise.

There's probably not a Sedalia lodge member, church member, chamber of commerce member, service club member or athletic group member who at some time or another hasn't encountered a situation where individuals are at cross purposes over organizational procedures. Too many want to be head men without the title and with the special privilege of criticizing or needling the officers who do hold the title.

This is really a disease of politics which has burst the bounds of quarantine and emaciates the healthy condition of cooperation, the working together toward precise and constructive objectives.

There comes to hand an allegory relating to religion in everyday life from the Missouri Council of Churches and Bertha Ingram, Savannah, Missouri, based on "Labourers Together With God" (I Cor. 3-9). It is a story of the Conference of Carpenter's tools:

Brother Hammer was in the chair. He had been told he must leave the shop because he was too noisy. He said, "If I must leave, then so must Brother Gimlet. He is so very insignificant and makes little impression."

"All right! But Brother Screw must go also. You just have to turn him round and round to get him anywhere."

"Very well, if you wish, I will go, but Brother Plane will have to leave too for all of his work is on the surface and has no depth."

"If I leave, so must Brother Rule, for all he does is measure others as if he were the only one who is right."

"If I must leave, so must Brother Sandpaper. I just don't care, he is rougher than he should be and is always rubbing people the wrong way."

In the midst of the discussion the Carpenter of Nazareth walked in to perform His day's work. He put on his apron and went to the bench to make a pulpit. He used the screw, gimlet, sandpaper, saw, hammer, plane and all the other tools. After the day's work was finished and the pulpit completed, Brother Saw arose and said: "Brethren, I perceive that we are all labourers together with God." (I. Cor. 3-9.)

How many of us so-called Christians resemble those tools? We fuss at the way others do things.

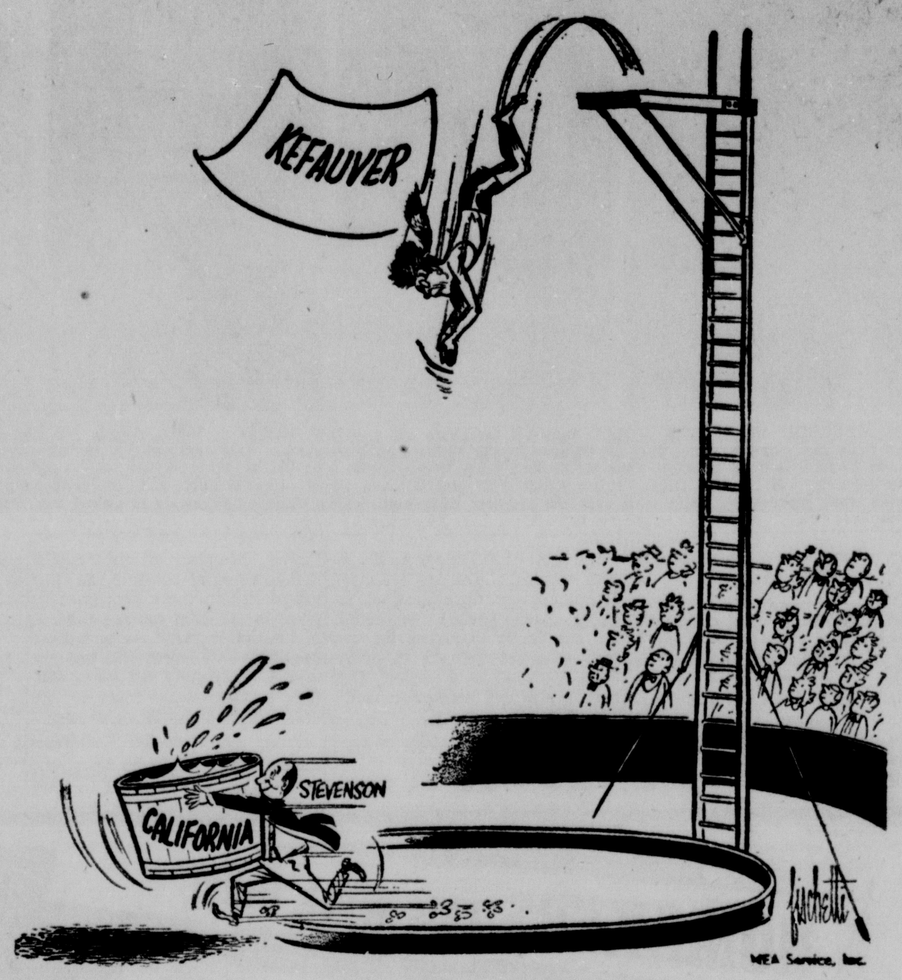

There is not one accusation that was untrue, yet the Carpenter used every tool and in no place could another have been used.

How very careful we should be to not discount any one of "God's Tools."

How true it is that the real Christian approach to our controversies over the other fellow's limitations should be along the road of charitable opinion.

The road of charity passes by some church where today it might be a good idea to stop in to worship for an hour with the Carpenter.

Washington Merry-Go-Round—

Tito Advised Molotov Was Being Fired

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Not only did the Kremlin fire Vyacheslav Molotov as foreign minister of Russia one day before Marshal Tito arrived, but, believe it or not, the Kremlin sent word to Tito in advance that Molotov was being fired.

Reliable advices received in the diplomatic corps state categorically that Tito received a special message from Moscow, shortly before he left Belgrade, subserviently notifying him that Molotov would be kicked out because of his part in conspiring against Tito in 1948.

Meanwhile, the American embassy in Moscow has warned President Eisenhower to beware of new Russian moves in the near east now that Dimitri Shepilov has replaced Molotov as foreign minister.

The president had received this warning from Moscow prior to his recent press conference in which he stated publicly that Russia's new rulers continue to follow dictatorial methods.

New Foreign Minister Shepilov is the man who negotiated the Communist arms deal with Egypt when he visited Cairo last year. As a result, the American embassy reports Shepilov will probably not be satisfied until the last westerner has been kicked out of the near east and all its oil is in Russian hands.

F.D.R. Jr.

It was missed by the press, but the Americans for Democratic Action quietly dropped Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., as a vice-president at their recent convention. Young F.D.R.'s name was scratched while his mother, an honorary ADA leader, sat on the stand.

The nominating committee notified Roosevelt in advance that ADA could no longer keep him as an officer as long as he acted as attorney and registered agent for the Caribbean strong man, Dictator Trujillo of the Dominican republic. Trujillo is under a barrage of criticism because hired killers allegedly murdered anti-Trujillo Dominican refugees on American soil. New York authorities are now probing reports that Columbia Professor Jesus De Galindez was thrown into the boiler of a Dominican steamship.

Roosevelt accepted the ADA decision gracefully and stayed away from the convention. However, his mother was on the platform when his name was omitted from the list of nominees.

Ike On Cyprus

The United States is following the British-Greek dispute over Cyprus with a great deal of interest, but with no urge to get into it, President Eisenhower recently informed National Commander Timothy Murphy of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Murphy called at the White House to report on his recent trip to the red-hot near east area.

"I came away much wiser, but by no means convinced as to who is to blame for the crisis or the best way to settle it," the VFW chief advised Eisenhower. "The Greeks want self-determination for Cyprus through NATO machinery, but there is no assurance that it can be accomplished with stability."

"I seriously doubt," agreed Eisenhower, "that it would help matters for the United States to intervene at this stage. It would be like walking into a house and trying to stop a quarrel between a husband and wife. The chances are we would only succeed in making enemies of both without bringing peace to the family."

"The president also indicated that he was going to be very selective about his speeches this campaign year when Murphy invited him to attend the VFW convention August 12 in Dallas.

"Give it to the boys (White House advisers) and we'll see if it can be worked out," the president said, referring to the VFW invitation. "I would very much like to go to Dallas, but I have to be careful this year about people reading politics into my appearances before non-political organizations like your own.

"I can't take five steps without some people charging me with political implications," he added.

Guest Editorial—

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH: Behind Tucker's Complaint. Mayor Tucker spoke with the voice of experience when he told St. Louis University graduates that competent citizens are inclined to avoid public office because of the disrespect which so often goes with it. Many people have developed a frame of mind in which they find it impossible to believe that an official is honest and doing his duty impartially.

What are the sources of this attitude? Relatively low public salaries are part of it. There is a coming-and-going-belief that the office is sought for other income than the legal salary, and that there is no point in paying more to a political plunderer. This ties directly into machine politics and patronage. Yet when it costs more to win many a public office than it pays, how are candidates to avoid all such connections? Naturally, the man with a not too scrupulous conscience is most likely to be a candidate.

But if democracy is to be preserved in vigor, greater respect will have to go with public office. Candidates and office-holders will have to be given greater independence through more adequate compensation. And a way will have to be found to reduce the cost of running for public office—perhaps by conducting campaigns to some extent at public expense and certainly by giving greater publicity to the sources of campaign funds.

It is pointless to distrust public officials even when there is cause to do so, unless there is a readiness to do something about basic causes on the local, state and national level. If the background of public office is cleaned up, there will be fewer well justified complaints such as Mayor Tucker's. Meanwhile a bow to him and those like him who accept office despite obvious and severe handicaps.

Clock In Her Heart

A 19-year-old girl named Martina Hall recently demonstrated her heart beat to a group of doctors in Washington. She is the first person to be equipped with the Hugnagel valve, a plastic mechanism invented to replace the valve of the aorta. At the behest of her doctor, Dr. W. Proctor Harvey, moderator of the "Happy Clinic" at Georgetown University, Miss Hall stepped in front of the microphone and opened her mouth. In the silence of the room a firm steady ticking was heard. When asked, "How does it feel to hear a clock in your heart?" she replied: "It would bother me if I did not hear it."

Miss Hall was one of 19 persons present at the clinic who demonstrated that some heart maladies, potentially fatal or disabling, are curable and reversible.

It is encouraging to learn that in this day when so many deaths are caused by heart disease, progress is being made in its cure and prevention. Some hearts that were once doomed are now beating happily.

Thought for Today—

And it came to pass, that he went through the corn fields on the sabbath day; and his disciples began, as they went, to pluck the ears of corn. — Mark 2:23.

Without a Sabbath, no worship; without worship, no religion; and without religion, no permanent freedom. — Charles Forbes.

Allergies

Now allergies are something
It seems that no one had
Until we learned about them,
And now they're awful bad;
Some people can't eat bread or cake,
And some can't eat potatoes,
Some can't sleep if they drink milk
And some can't eat tomatoes;
Strawberries, so delicious,
Will give some folks a rash,
Yet I can think of no one
Allergic to plain hash;
Now some, when they smell roses,
Will always start to sneeze,
And perfume will make others
Begin to sniff and wheeze;
Flannel gives some folks an itch,
And nylon some can't wear,
Some cannot stand a closed-up room
And some can't stand fresh air;
Some sniffle from a little dust
But find it doesn't hurt
When lots of dust adds up to
That funny stuff called dirt;
Now every place you go, it seems,
They talk of allergies,
Somebody can't eat honey
And someone can't eat cheese.
So if you have no allergy,
You're really out of style
But go ahead, enjoy life now,
You'll get one after 'while.

Your Child's Health—

Danger Lurks In Water, Children Must Be Guarded

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Warm weather in the Northern Hemisphere certainly brings more of us, including youngsters, into the water more often.

There are two features of this which I should like to discuss: first, the accidental drowning of young children and second some remarks about swimming.

A few years ago the Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company pointed out that accidental drowning takes an annual toll of about 700 lives among children under five.

Nearly one half of these were in the one year old age group.

After the age of two the risk drops off somewhat since a youngster can be made aware of the danger of falling in the water and also probably has a better chance of getting out if he does.

About three times as many boys as girls were drowned This suggests that even at this early age the boy is the more venturesome.

More than half of the drownings on which information was available occurred in rivers, brooks, lakes, or similar bodies of water, many of which were on or near the home grounds of the youngster.

Some occurred in ornamental garden pools, wells, cisterns, or the like and a few in drainage ditches, or gravel pits. Several drowned in bathtubs.

The lesson of this is that small children are sometimes more active than their parents expect and have to be watched constantly if there is any possibility of accidental drowning.

Every year a good many older youngsters as well as grownups who can swim, and indeed swim well, are drowned while indulging in this otherwise healthful sport.

Haphazard swimming in lakes, oceans or rivers may hold unexpected dangers. The water may be deeper than expected, there may be undertows, submerged rocks, stumps, weeds or sudden step-off spots.

Sometimes the water is more shallow than anticipated and a dive results in a broken neck or concussion.

If the water is too cold a sudden cramp may develop and if no one is near, the swimmer can drown rapidly.

The lone swimmer runs the greatest risk of all. No one should go in swimming away from either a supervised beach or the presence of some experienced swimmer who can come to the rescue if trouble arises.

Panic is believed a particular hazard and I have been told that this is responsible for many deaths by drowning.

Looking Backward...

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

"45 Minutes of Concrete to 'Lake of Ozarks'" was selected by the publicity committee of the Chamber of Commerce to advertise Sedalia and highways 65 and 50 as a direct route. The slogan was submitted by Mrs. Margaret Jackson, 201 East Third, for which she received $10 offered for the best received.

1931

The Rev. Ralph A. Waggoner, pastor of the Broadway Presbyterian Church, was elected vice-president of Park College Alumni Association at a meeting held at Parkville.

1931

William Loos, Ogden, Utah, returned there after being called here due death of his brother-in-law, Roy M. Newman.

1931

Norman Scotten, golf professional at the Sedalia Country Club, left for Kansas City to play in qualifying rounds for the National Open Golf Tournament at Meadow Lake Country Club.

FORTY YEARS AGO

John W. Hicks Jr., former Sedalian, was made manager at Kansas City for the General Film Co. with which he had been holding a position for some time. In his promotion he received a substantial increase in salary.

1916

Raymond Brandt, who attended the University of Missouri at Columbia, arrived home for his summer vacation.

1916

The city council approved an amendment to an ordinance recently passed for licensing operation of motor cars in the city of Sedalia. It provided a tax of $2 on all motor vehicles less than 12 horsepower; $3 for those between 12 and 36, and a tax of $5 for all over 36 horsepower.

1916

Harry King, former Sedalian, foreman for a squad of electrical workers for the Great Western Power Co., was killed in a fall from a pole at Rio Vista, Colo.

Democrat Pick-Ups

Odds and Ends By News Staff

THERE WAS A hurry up order and the manager of the firm, a woman, felt it was necessary to go to Kansas City and get what she needed instead of taking a chance on delivery being late. She took along one of the boys and while they were there she decided to pick up some other orders she had and bring them back with her to save freight.

They stopped for the orders and when they were loading them—part in the trunk and part in the back seat — the boy suggested that the load was too heavy for the car.

"Oh, I have had a bigger load than this in my other car," she told him, and since it was the same make and a larger car she didn't think she had a thing to worry about. So they piled more in, just leaving enough room in the back to see out the rear window, and started out.

The car bumped along the highway and then began to bog down. It was a flat tire, they were very certain, and what were they going to do with the jack which was way in the back of the trunk with all the things they had picked up and shoved in the trunk in front of it.

But it wasn't a flat tire, it was just a tired car that was creaking under its heavy load. The car might have been newer, the same make, bigger than the other one — but — the springs in the back seat just weren't as strong and couldn't hold the load up.

They started again. The car creeped along in comparison to er cars with its top speed 45 s an hour. Not only that, it ed, and the two people in it rolled, too.

Now and then the two would look at each other with questioning expressions. "Maybe," suggested the boy, "I'd better drive."

"No, you're lighter than I am" the woman replied, "We'd only roll more."

Every car would watch them weaving and swaying along and then when they would pass them, the occupants of the passing car would look back with faces that became a little startled as they saw the Sedalians rolling around in the front seat. The Sedalians could imagine the comments. Everybody thought they were drunk. They were glad they got home without getting arrested — in fact they were glad they got home — period.

What is that old song: "Merrily We Roll Along" — that's what they did, or maybe it should have been: "Wearily We Roll Along" because they were a weary pair by the time they rolled from Kansas City back to Sedalia. — H. L.

SOMEHOW OR OTHER the tiny boy just doesn't like open doors and every time he sees a door open he shuts it. One day recently his mother went into a closet to get some clothes to be washed and as she was getting the clothes the youngster shut the door. It wouldn't have been so bad if it had been an ordinary door but this door didn't have a doorknob on it. It had a little something on the outside that she could get it open but there was nohing on the inside. It was a terrible feeling to be shut in a closet with a door you couldn't open, it was dark and very stuffy in there, she knew she could suffocate if she stayed in there too long but she didn't know how she would ever get out.

On the other side of the door she could hear her baby crying and wanting her to come out. She tried to talk to him through the door but she couldn't seem to pacify him.

Suddenly something surged up within her. She just had to get out of that closet and she threw herself against the door as hard as she could until she broke the catch and the door flung open. That was really a golden moment in her life, out again from that dark, hot closet where for several minutes she had been held prisoner without any promise of help, and to her crying youngster who had locked her in.—H.L.

As Sedalia Sees It—

GOP Win Rests on Economy As Much As Ike's Health

By JOSEPH A. DEAR
Democrat-Capital
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The impact of economies on the outcome of the national elections could be as important as the President's health.

If the boom fades and Ike catches a cold, Democratic prospects soar. That's based on the theory that the Republicans have not yet been able to dispel sufficiently a still detectable distrust of their ability to lead during a business downturn. And also on the theory that votes might be lost if many Americans decided Ike wasn't long for this world.

For that reason, it can't be said that this election is in the bag. A common cold or an acute attack of indigestion, which could be misrepresented as something else, could change the picture in a twinkling.

No decent Democrat would wish even a cold upon the President. Nor would any sane Democrat look for an economic downturn that could be exploited politically. In fact, the Democrats already have talked too much in this vein. Just a bit more and Vice-President Nixon's label of "Doomocrats" might stick.

Nevertheless, the economic health of the country is going to influence the election. Republicans recognize this. Dean William I. Myers of Cornell, a conservative and an authority on agriculture, has prepared studies showing there is a close correlation between the commodity price index and housing starts on the one hand, and election returns. The Republicans seem to do best when the commodity index is high or rising, and the number of housing starts is high or rising. Myers, incidentally, is credited with playing an important part in getting Ezra Benson in the cabinet as Secretary of Agriculture.

On the face of it, the Republicans look to be in bad shape right now by the Myers formula. Farm prices are off. So are housing starts. Actually, the Myers' formula can't be simplified that much. In 1952, for example, he discounted the commodity price index and based his correct forecast on housing starts.

A solid picture of the state of the construction industry this year is not available now. But a comprehensive analysis is under preparation at the Commerce Department. It will be released in about two weeks.

Here's the way the picture shapes up: The number of housing starts is down from last year, and apparently the anticipated spring pick-up didn't materialize. But the dollar volume of new housing is down only slightly from last year. This indicates that although fewer homes are being built, more big and expensive homes are being built. Industrial and commercial construction this year is up over last year. In fact, the healthy state of the construction industry is accounted for mainly by activity in this field.

It will be interesting to see what Dean Myers makes of this. But quite apart from the political readings an expert may make, these figures are suggestive in another sense. For example, the economy doesn't benefit as much from construction of a few expensive houses as it does from construction of many inexpensive houses whose total dollar value is no greater. The argument is that sale of consumer durables (washing machines, TV sets, and so forth) depends primarily on the number of houses and not the cost of the houses.

Also, the figures suggest that the peak of the housing boom may be past. Similarly, the large number of new cars in inventory suggests that Detroit has saturated the market. That doesn't imply disaster. But if the nation is on wheels and well housed, industry cannot be geared as it was when housing and new cars were in general demand.

Ruth Millett Says—

The Armor In Married Life Consists of Tiny Word 'We'

A married couple can take a lot of trouble in stride so long as they keep thinking of themselves as a team.

But even small problems seem gigantic for the couple who no longer think in terms of "we."

The saddest letters that come to this column are from wives who admit, "We can't seem to talk about our problem. If we could just talk without getting into an argument I'm sure we could work things out."

Why do so many married couples lose the ability to "reach" each other with words?

Why do so many husbands and wives feel alone at the very times when they most need each other's strength and wisdom and courage?

Why does it happen that two persons who once could talk about anything in the world suddenly find that they are hiding their thoughts and fears and frustrations from each other?

It probably comes about because one or both start thinking in terms of "I" instead of in terms of "we."

"I feel this way." "I want that." "I wish he would . . ." "I wish she wouldn't . . ."

It doesn't take long for "I" thinking to build up a barrier between a husband and wife that makes them like strangers when trouble strikes or when they need to talk out their problems.

For it is just a short step from thinking "I want —" to thinking "He wouldn't understand" or "There's no use trying to talk to her about it."

No husband and wife can live and work and plan and meet life's problems as a team, pulling together, unless they more often think in terms of "we" than in terms of "I".

Conductor Makes Last Trip After 55 Years Service on Railroad

MOBERLY, (AP) — Conductor William P. Christian made his last train trip yesterday.

The 78-year-old Moberly resident's railroad career—55 years with the Wabash Railroad—ended when he completed a trip from Kansas City to St. Louis on the "City of St. Louis."

Christian intends to take a rest and do a little fishing.

For the last 25 of those 55 years he was on the "City of St. Louis" and that's about 2,500,000 miles of travel on that train alone, he estimates.

Well-wishers who greeted the conductor in St. Louis were shown a wristwatch by Christian. "That's from the gang in Kansas City," he said.

Then he walked away from his greeters—maybe to get in some of that fishing.

Space Man Lags

WINNIPEG (AP)—The man from Mars can't hold a candle to the western cowboy when readers pick books from the city library. Books about spacemen caught on for a time, says chief librarian A. F. Jamieson. "But the western is right back on top and will always be with us."

Income Taxes in England Chase Playwright Noel Coward

By TOM A. CULLEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

LONDON — (NEA) — Noel Coward, British playwright and American TV star, doesn't live here any more.

Gone is the London flat in which he used to entertain Marlene Dietrich and the Duchess of Kent. Sold under the auctioneer's gavel are the two Steinways on which he picked out such memorable tunes as "Mad Dogs and Englishmen." Up for sale is his 147-acre farm in Kent. Noel is moving out.

"I love England, but—," sighs the 56-year-old playwright. That "but" means that he has been chased away from England by high income taxes. It means that he is taking up permanent residence in Jamaica, where the climate is sunnier and the taxes less onerous.

Recently, Coward sat out on the English Channel, only two miles from "my beloved homeland," not daring to put a foot on British soil. To do so would have cost him $75,000, the amount the tax people would have deducted from his income earned outside Britain.

His liner, the S.S. Liberte, was anchored just off Plymouth, and Coward, wearing red, white and blue silk pajamas, had a long look at the English coastline — through a porthole.

A few hours by train would have put him in London, where his latest play, "South Sea Bubble," is a smash hit. There would have been congratulations for "darling Noel" from Vivien Leigh, star of the play, and afterwards a party in Mayfair.

But "darling Noel" is no fool, even though he once christened a Rolls-Royce "Fluff."

If he stays out of Britain for 12 months he can no longer be classed as a resident here for income tax purposes. He can then take advantage of the lower Jamaica tax rate on money earned outside Britain.

"If I leave this ship I am faced with poverty," is the way the pajama-clad Coward put it to reporters, leaning a trifle to the melodramatic side.

Touched by the plight of this modern "Flying Dutchman," condemned to sail past his native land without touching foot down for another year, Britons are wondering if perhaps Internal Revenue isn't being too harsh on creative artists. Is Britain driving the cream of her talent away by super-taxes?

The recent decision of film star Jean Simmons and her husband Stewart Granger, both British-born, to take out American citizenship papers is cited as a case in point. Tax troubles are said to have motivated the decision.

But Noel Coward's case is admittedly an unusual one. Last year the balding playwright reached what is probably the peak of his earning power. He was paid $36,000 a week for a stint at a Las Vegas night club, and $50,000 apiece for two television shows sponsored by Ford. Even after taxes and expenses had been deducted, Noel was left with a tidy third of his earnings.

NOEL COWARD AND GUEST IN JAMAICA: The climate is sunnier, taxes less onerous. Here he entertains Mary Martin.

Then he made the mistake of coming to England for eight weeks, at the end of which time he was handed a $75,000 tax bill on his American earnings. For a while it looked as though he might have to chore again in the rhinestone mines of Las Vegas to recoup his tax losses.

But Coward is liquidating. Under an auctioneer's hammer recently went his French Impressionist paintings (they brought $39,000), the 10-foot sofa in dove gray suede and the morocco-bound books from his London flat.

It's good-bye to London and "all that."

For Coward, who calls himself "destiny's tot," it is the end of a hectic, screwball era which bore him to the top of his fame. As he sits fanning himself on the veranda of his home in tax-happy Jamaica, he may perhaps remember the toast which he wrote into his play, "Cavalcade:"

"Let's couple the future of England with the past of England. Let's drink to the glories and victories and triumphs that are over, and the sorrows that are over, too."

Former Michigan Engineer Saved Korean Power System

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—South Korea might have been shut down by a power shortage last winter except for Edward R. Rall, 73, former Michigan utility engineer.

Rall came out of retirement (enforced because of age) eight years ago to enter government service. He was assigned to rehabilitate the old Yongwol power plant which had been crumbling away since it was shot up in the Korean War.

Working with unskilled labor in an isolated Korean town he patched up the big plant. To the amazement of Korean and U.S. officials, he got the job done just as South Korea faced an epic power shortage. A U.S. Army power barge had to be withdrawn for repairs just as Korea's major hydroelectric plant blew out a transformer.

Power output in South Korea fell to 61,000 kilowatts. Hundreds of factories faced shutdowns. Officials said homes would have to depend on candles. The power from Rall's plant came in and boosted output to a record 98,000 kilowatts.

"Rall saved the nation," says one U.N. economic official.

Rall and another 73-year-old electric expert who has come out of retirement to work in Korea, John Damon, have been nicknamed the "Power Whizzes" by their younger associates.

Rall was the only American living at Yongwol, a village of 3,000 unskilled Koreans.

"This work is more restful than laying around the house under the wife's heels," he says.

"In this village there are no movies, no dance halls, no nothing. I come down to Seoul every two weeks to get mail and to hear the English language spoken."

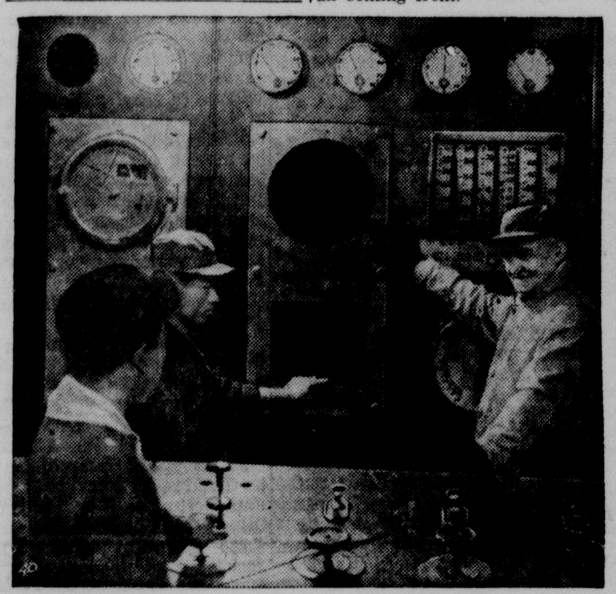

Rall speaks almost no Korean but says he had no problems showing his eager crew how to pull apart all the machinery, boilers and turbines and clean, inspect and recline every part.

"A wrench is 'wrenchie,' a pipe is 'pipe oh', a tube is 'tubsey' and any kind of scraping or cleaning is 'washie washie'."

Rall found that Youngwol had been used only for standby in the past since South Korea once had enough power from vast hydroelectric developments in the north now taken over by the Communists.

"Everybody kept saying it couldn't be done," Rall says. "At the plant itself, men would say 'No can do.' I told them to get that out of their heads. Now they say to me, 'Can do, will do'."

Soon his restored plant was cranking out 33,000 kilowatts, more than it had in six years and one-third of South Korea's total power. In Seoul, they couldn't believe at first where it was all coming from.

Racers Compete in 100-Mile Event June 17

US Championship Will Be Sought In Thrill Run

Nationally famous speed pilots seated in the latest models convertible automobiles will be seen Sunday, June 17, in a 100-mile national championship race to be held on the one-mile dirt track of the Missouri State Fair Grounds.

This racing event is being sanctioned by the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing, Inc., (NASCAR), the largest such organization in the world which dominates stock car racing in America. NASCAR sanctions more auto races than any other like such organization.

The first entry to be received by Bill Corley, promoter of the event, was that of Mel Larson, Plymouth, Mich., who pilots a 1956 Ford. Larson has also piloted 88 Oldsmobiles and his choice for the dirt track event here will not be made for a few days.

Such other pilots as Frank Mundy, Curtis Turner, Larry Odo, Don Oldenberg, Fonty Flock, and Bob Welborn, have sent for entries and their entry blanks are expected the first of this week.

Corley, in discussing the coming event, said that the top names in NASCAR sanctioned races will be at the Missouri Fair track for the first such race to ever be run here. Many drivers who appeared in the Big 500 last Memorial Day and who have turned to stocks have indicated their presence in Sedalia.

It has been said the racing of convertibles furnishes a greater thrill than the usual stock car run because the fans have a greater opportunity to see the drivers at the wheels, see their actions as they pilot their cars past the grandstands, see the action of these daring men at all times.

Not usually incorporated in conventional speed cards, the time trials which consist of one-lay duels with the timing equipment—are used to arrive at starting positions for the entire qualified field in the long distance chase that caps the program's excitement.

Elaborate and precise time apparatus which separates car speeds by the slim margin of one one-hundreth of a second will be pressed into service; each pilot will go all out in these runs on the mile dirt track, gunning for a favorable starting slot in the heavy-paying finale. Top purse of the year, $4,400 is up for grabs, certain to lure the finest talent in the country.

Already, with the race still six days away, indications point to a heavy entry list. The equipment is most impressive. No car older than a 1954 model is eligible, while popular makes entered include mostly 1956 models of Buick, Chevrolet, Dodge, Oldsmobile, Ford, Mercury, and Plymouth.

The beautiful red Bel Aire Chevrolet convertible from the Mike O'Connor Buick Chevrolet Motor Co. has been signed as the pace car for the race. Mike O'Connor, owner of the firm, was thrilled when the Chevrolet was selected as the pace car for the races Sunday, especially with like Chevrolets in the race.

During the week Chevrolets will tour Sedalia and area announcing the event with appropriately signs on the sides of the local cars.

FIRST ENTRY IN 100-MILE CONVERTIBLE RACE—Mel Larson, Plymouth, Mich., is the first to send in the entry to the National Championship 100-mile event to be staged on the mile dirt track at the Missouri State Fair Grounds on Sunday June 17. He began his racing career as a jalopy driver in 1951, driven modified, sportsmen cars, midgets, late model stocks and now the streamline convertibles. Convertible races are fast becoming the popular race events of modern stock car races.

Swaps Wins Argonaut Handicap; New Record

HOLLYWOOD PARK, Inglewood, Calif., June 9—(AP)—Thundering to a new world's record for the mile in 1:33 1-5 today, the mighty Swaps won the Argonaut Handicap.

Bobby Brocato was second, beaten by a length, and Porterhouse, who nipped Swaps at the wire two weeks ago in the Californian, was third.

Duke's sensational runner Dave Sime won honors as a Silver Skates speed skater in Madison Square Garden in 1950.

University Citian Win State Amateur Title From Blair

ST. LOUIS, June 9—(AP)—Bob Barton, veteran week-end golfer from suburban University City, played steady golf for a stunning upset victory, 6 and 5, over defending champion Jim Tom Blair III of Jefferson City today in the title match of the Missouri state amateur golf tourney.

The 40-year-old Barton began piling up a lead on the second nine of the morning round and finished the first 18 holes three up on the 24-year-old son of the lieutenant governor.

The power-hitting Blair tried to pull his game together in the after noon but he couldn't find the shots that usually roll up the birdies.

Barton, a foreman who is still going to night school to get his engineering degree, won the championship on his second attempt. Blair was seeking his third title.

Tops Sedalia Batsmen With .500 Average—

A's Lean Heavily On Fall's Potent Bat, Smooth Fielding

The potent bat which shortstop Ralph Fall swings for the Sedalia Athletics has been a woeful problem for opposing hurlers during the first four games this season.

A free swinging righthander, Fall is belting the ball at a hefty .500 clip with eight safties in 16 trips to the plate. That's tops among the Athletic batsmen. A long circuit clout and two run producing doubles are included in his hit production.

Fall also has drawn four base on balls and, as a possible indicator to show how much difficulty pitchers experience in attempting to retire him, he still has his first time to strike out.

Ralph's play afield has given the Athletics a big lift, too. In the past two games against Fiddler's of Kansas City, Kan., and Columbia, he has displayed some exceptionally fancy glove work.

Gifted with the ability to range quickly to either his right or left, Fall has turned in some genuine crowd-pleasing plays by throwing out batters on ground balls which seemed ear-marked for sure hits.

Three seasons in professional baseball are included in Fall's baseball experience. In 1949 he signed a contract with the St. Louis Browns and was assigned to Vidalia, Ga., in the Georgia State League. After putting in two seasons with Vidalia, he went to Dublin, Ga., and later Jessop, Ga., both of which were members of the Georgia State loop.

During 1951 his last year of pro ball, Ralph really seemed to be finding his stride. He was one of the league's top RBI men and put terror in the minds of many an opposing pitcher with his long smashes.

Ralph clouted nine home runs for the Dublin club during the first month of play in 1951, and continued his batting rampage during the season.

Fall went into the Army in 1952 and continued his diamond activity with several service clubs. On Okinawa, where he was stationed during the majority of his service time Ralph played with one of the finest clubs in the Orient. His club met the barnstorming New York Yankees after the Yanks won the world championship in 1953.

Like most of today's baseballers, Ralph got his start and initial education of the game from the Junior American Legion team which was sponsored by Pettis County Post No. 16. Fall sparked the team to second place in the 1948 tournament at Kansas City.

Since release from the Army, Fall has been attending college at Warrensburg. The Dean's List shows that he's an excellent student besides a fine shortstop and heavy hitter.

As summed up by manager "Buddy" Thomas, the fortunes of the Athletics largely depend on the continued hitting and fielding of capable Ralph Fall.

Sports Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

VACATION TIME has arrived and Missouri is a great place to spend it. That's first hand information dealt out by the Missouri Resources and Development Department at Jefferson City.

The Resources and Development has been for years stressing the state of Missouri as a vacation land through national advertisements and is trying to educate its own people of the importance of Missouri as such. Few Missourians can actually tell you what Missouri has in the form of recreation and relaxation and, to those many who don't know, a three-cent stamp will get you literature which is most informative.

Furthermore, the R and D has another service offered to various civic, educational, etc., groups which makes for good programs. It is a series of colored motion pictures showing historical as well as recreational spots in the state. They are not only educational pictures, but give one a good idea of a good place to spend his vacation time.

The new colored maps being distributed by the state are as good a map as any state in the country has to offer through their state departments. This 1956 map of Missouri not only shows the highways, major farm-to-market roads, but also state parks, historical sites, military installations, vacation spots and just about every point of interest in the state.

So with reference to vacation, take a glimpse at the Vacation Section of The Democrat-Capital, pick your place and enjoy yourself for this 1956 vacation time.

NEXT Sunday afternoon something new in auto racing will be seen. It is the National Championship Convertible 100-mile race on the one-mile track at the Missouri State Fair Grounds. This event is being sanctioned by the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing, Inc.

Nascar lays claim to sanctioning more auto races than any other such organization in the world, and overwhelmingly dominates stock car racing in America. Such being the case, the organization enjoys a close association with various automoble and accessory manufacturers.

Often results of these races result in various car manufacturers calling upon NASCAR for reports on any failures of their particular car and the same is used by accessory manufacturers.

Ever mindful and alert to the importance of safety for all concerned, officials of the NASCAR perform a rigid inspection on all cars entered at each race meet. Roll-bars are a requirement on every car that competes. Entrants are given some latitude as to their location, but materials used and methods of attaching them to the car are subject to close scrutiny by technical officials.

Much valuable knowledge has been gleaned from the inevitable crashes that occur in NASCAR competition, where rich purses are guaranteed, and top flight drivers expect to share in them to the tune of annual winnings of between $20,000 and $50,000.

It is interesting to note the safety belt is coming into its own through the experiences of racing. More private cars now are equipped with these belts than in the history of American motoring. This is one feature the sponsors demand of these convertibles and that is safety belts that meet CAA aircraft requirements are mandatory and must be attached securely to the frame of the car.

So next Sunday start early and be on hand for the time trials which begin at 1 p.m. and following their completion the big event starts—100 miles on the one-mile dirt track.

SEDALIA has been chosen as the site for the 1956 Babe Ruth League Missouri State Tournament to be played on August 3, 4 and 5. This selection was made sometime ago but not confirmed until the past week.

Sedalia's Commissioner, Ed Kehde Jr., who has been very active in trying to get the tournament sent to Sedalia is to be in Lebanon this afternoon meeting with the Babe Ruth officials. The tournament will be discussed and plans completed for the handling of this baseball meet.

Kehde said he expects to see six teams playing in the tournament this year and will probably be a double elimination. The Commissioner anticipates an exceptionally large following of these amateur teams coming in to Sedalia.

Just what teams will be here will not be definitely known until after Babe Ruth League play-offs have been completed and this will not be until the latter part of July.

It's good to see these tournaments starting to come back to the Capital of Out-State Missouri—Sedalia.

Town, Country Defeated Fulton Here Friday 8-7

Town and Country girls softball team defeated the Fulton girls on the diamond at Center Park, 16th and Center Friday night 8 to 7 in an overtime thrilling battle.

Ida Hughes who was on the mound for the T-C girls was able to go but three innings. She had been suffering an ear infection. Walz relieved her and went on to become the winning pitcher. It is the second game in a row that Walz has been the winning hurler, in relief role.

The heady playing of Betty Joe Dick in Center, the Rayl cousins combination at Shortstop and Third contributed to the victory. Not failing to mention Dorothy Rayl who slammed out her fifth home run of the season in the first inning.

It was in the eight with the bases loaded that Ewell smashed bounced a hot one to shortstop to get in the winning run.

Town and Country goes to Fulton Tuesday night to play a return game.

Bunch of Miami, Okla., who were so close they coulnd't avoid hitting him. Moore and Crocket left the track on the north side with Moore coming right back on the track. Crocket hit the side of his head and was knocked unconscious until he arrived at the hospital. He hopes to be back next week leading the pack all the way.

Bill Chennault, a top favorite contender of Kansas City turned in the fastest time of the evening. Placing second in the Trophy Dash, third in the fast heat and in the main-go-around.

Jay Moore led the field in the main feature for 24½ laps when a tire blew out. D. B. Bunch trailing a close second whizzed by to receive the checkered flag.

Jerry Weld, youthful contender of Kansas City, piloting the popular car known as the "flying suitcase" turned in the fifth fastest qualifying time for his first initial appearance at the Clinton Speedway. Jerry took fourth in the main feature. He is a top favorite at Riverside in Kansas City, having won about every feature race there this season.

One of the largest fields of the year is expected for Wednesday night with the role of favorite is wide open. A $500 guaranteed purse is offered to the drivers.

St. Louis Stars Have Fine Club, Excellent Record

The St. Louis Stars, an all-Negro semi-pro club, come to town today to meet the hustling Sedalia Athletics in an afternoon game at Liberty Park. Opening pitch will be made at 2:30 p.m.

Manager "Buddy" Thomas' Sedalians will be seeking their fourth victory against one loss with either Bobby Brown or "Skip" Schultz handling mound chores.

The St. Louis Club is managed by Gibbie Meeks. Meeks has appeared on the local diamond in years gone by as a performer for the St. Louis Giants and Memphis Red Sox of the Negro American League.

Meeks' aggregation now has racked eight opponents this season with the greatest of ease. The Stars dropped one contest, a 6-4 decision, to a club of ex-major leaguers now participating in St. Louis semi-pro competition.

"King" Parker and Wes Smith, both outfielders, have proven to be the big guns in the Stars' offensive. Parker is hitting at a .375 clip while Smith leads the team with a fat .425 average.

Meeks indicated that he intended to pitch "Fire Ball" Jenkins against the Athletics, holding Joe Rushing and Joe Boyd in reserve. Jenkins has chalked-up five of the Stars' eight victories.

Manager Thomas, a bit put out over the batting slump which most of the Athletics have experienced during the last two games, put his charges through a long hitting work out Friday night in an attempt to have the locals at their sharpest for the St. Louis test.

If Brown gets the starting nod for the Sedalians he will be attempting to register his second triumph against one loss, which he suffered in relief against Fiddlers of Kansas City, Kan., a week ago.

If Schultz goes to the hill he will be making his first appearance with the A's since joining the team. Schultz is familiar with local fans as a former pitcher with the Post 16 Legion club and the Sedalia Ban Johnson representative. This past spring he was a member of the Missouri University hurling corp.

The line-ups:

Sedalia, Bones Morgan, 2b; Bill Dey, lf; Ralph Fall, ss; Salty Schumaker, c; Ed Russell, cf; Bud Thomas, 3b; Larry Vilver or Sonny Thomas, rf; Don Broaddus, 1b; Bobby Brown or Skip Schultz, p.

St. Louis, Rob Cochrell, 2b; Walter Tankins, lf; John Forester, ss; Fats Hester, c; King Parker, cf; Otto Ross, 3b; Wes Smith, rf; Karle Ballarde, 1b; "Fire Ball" Jenkins, p.

Western Auto Is Leading In Babe RuthBall

(By Vic Van Dyne)

Friday night the Babe Ruth League played two makeup games, the first between the Brown's Supply and Taystee won by the Browns 15 to 8 and the second game was between Western Auto and the Phillips 66 won by Western Auto 16 to 9.

Jack Benner took over mound duties for the Browns and allowed but six hits and he held the opponents Taystees to the eight runs. Guy Smith was the loser who allowed six hits, but poor backing of his team mates cost him 15 runs.

The Browns stole eleven bases while Taystee was able to steal but four. Briscoe the little short stop of the Browns was walked five times and scored five runs. Noland, centerfielder, his team mate got four hits to lead the hitting for the Browns. Noland had a double and three singles. Johnson also hit a double for the Browns.

Guy Smith, second base, who relieved Shultz on the mound, led his team in hits with a 363 foot drive which went for a triple and one double. Dale Miller also collected a three-baser to help the Taystee scoring.

In the second tilt the Western Auto moved into first place with no defeats and three wins for the season. Dave Wilhite led his team to victory by giving up only five hits. Farris was the losing pitcher.

Herrick, tripled for Phillips 66, Holman hit a double and little Quincy "Butch" Jones hit an inside the park homer. "Butch" laid the wood to a curve ball and drove it to the 363 foot mark and circled the bases before the ball could be retrieved and thrown in.

Phillips had four stolen bases as Western Auto stole four.

Monday night Phillips 66 will meet Taystee in the opener and the second game is between Mullins and Andersons. The opener starts at 6:30 p.m.

Tuesday night an important meeting is to be held at the Elks Club for all team managers, officers, and especially the parents of the Babe Ruth players. The purpose of the meeting is to create more interest among the parents and discuss the league problems.

Bill Harrison

Ozark Empire Championship Races Sunday

The Springfield Fairgrounds Speedway will be the scene of one of the most important late model stock car races in the country on next Sunday afternoon, June 17, according to Glen B. Boyd, secretary of the Ozark Empire Fair.

This Ozark Empire Grand Championship Race is due to be battled out over the 200-lap, 100-mile route, with cash purses in excess of $2500 going to the lead-footed throttle pushers, most of whom will be mounted in brand new 1956 automobiles, including Chevrolets, Dodges, Fords, Oldsmobiles, Mercurys, and all the other leading makes.

Many nationally known drivers will be in competition, such as the one pictured above who is Bill Harrison of Topeka, Kan. He will be driving a Ford Sunliner convertible. Harrison is a perennial front runner in national standings, having finished among the first five drivers for six straight years. He also has won the trophy for the best sportsmanship of any driver in the International Motor Contest Association (IMCA) last year. Harrison also is a former polo player who owned his own string of polo ponies and now, besides auto race driving, also owns a garage in North Topeka.

Race time for this spectacular event, which will be run in two heats of 100 laps each, is 2:30 p.m. Grandstand tickets will go on sale at 11 a.m. next Sunday at the Fairgrounds with reserved and box seats admission at $2 and adult general admission at $1.50. Children under 12 are only 50 cents in the general admission seat sections.

Parking will be free with parking area available for thousands of cars. The time trials that precede the races will start promptly at 2 p.m. To avoid traffic delays, it is suggested that patrons come early and picnic on the Fairgrounds.

J. Boyd Rogers and Fishing Boat

Former Conductor—

No Retiring Rocking Chair For Active J. Boyd Rogers

Retirement as a railroad conductor isn't being spent in a rocking chair for J. Boyd Rogers, 1720 South Grand, he's really enjoying the years after his long service to the railroad. One of his pet hobbies is fishing and he is shown in one of his new fashion fishing boats which he built this spring.

Several weeks ago he was reading Outdoor Life and came upon this creation for a fisherman, designed by Rex L. Reitz, San Antonia, Tex. After reading the article Mr. Rogers decided that in his spare time he would add it to his fishing equipment but designed his a little larger.

His Pato Loco (Spanish for Crazy Duck) was launched in Lake Creek, four miles south of Smithton and proved to be a success. It is simple he reports and built with simple tools, at a cost of about $15 for everything but the umbrella.

First a large truck inner tube and one automobile inner tube were first purchased. A ¾-inch plywood platform composed of two parts, one for the truck tube and one for the auto tube were made. These are lashed to the innertubes with nylon cord and when ready for launching the two parts are fastened together, the platforms overlapping, and four bolts and wingnuts.

In the center of the platform is a hole. Now as uncomplicated as the hull may seem, the engine problem is even more simple, that's the operator (Mr. Rogers) who slips on a pair of rubber flippers. The operator dangles his or her legs down through the hole in the platform. Strange as it may seem, the speed of the craft is much faster than one really realizes, and considerable distance can be made, with little tiresome work.

Mr. Rogers went the inventor one better. He installed an umbrella to keep the burning sun off of him while out fishing. Then on each side of the hole in the platform he placed two-by-fours and drilled several slanting holes in them. In the holes he anchors his rods to range along the sides of the craft and at the same time he casts here and there for any fish outside the boat area.

"A builder and user will be repaid with many satisfying hours of fishing", Mr. Rogers commented in telling of his new fishing equipment.

Mr. Rogers is well known here. He is a retired Missouri Pacific passenger conductor, who retired eight years and four months ago. His pastime outside of fixing things up around his home, raising a garden, cutting the grass is fishing and squirrel hunting.

Negro League to Hold Annual All-Star Game

CHICAGO, June 9 (AP)—The Negro American Baseball League will hold its annual east-west all-star game Aug. 12 at Comiskey Park, league president Dr. J. B. Martin, announced today.

Members of the Kansas City Monarchs and Memphis Red Sox will form the West squad, with the East team picked from the Birmingham Black Barons and Detroit Stars.

Jaycees Lead Industrial League Games

The Jaycees of the Sedalia Industrial League have the top spot at present with Hamms Beer pushing hard for that extra needed victory to tie them. At present the Jaycees have a 5-0 record and Hamms 4-0.

The race is getting hotter and hotter as the league progresses into the season. The Meadow Gold boys are breathing down the necks of the leaders with a record of 4-1 and a percentage rating of .800. Jolly Welders are to be reckoned with they having a 3-2 record or .600 percentage.

The lower half of the league has a far spread from the leaders, but as the weather gets warmer and the players get better they will be in a position to upset the leaders.

The IOOF team withdrew from the league the past week. This team is being replaced by the Sealtest Milk aggregation who has accepted the standing of the IOOF and threaten to make the necessary battle for a comeback. Sealtest plays Monday night under a new manager, Tom Kindle Jr., and meets Tom's TV Service.

This week schedule may prove to be a tough one and an exciting one for not only the teams but the fans. If Hamms Beer can get safely past the Moose Club, it puts them into a tie with the Jaycees. Then these two undefeated teams will clash in the opener on Thursday night.

It is possible this game could turn out to be another thriller just as the Jaycees-Moose Club game proved last week when the Jaycees made a comeback to win the game 4-3.

The Standings.

	W.	L.	Pct.
Jaycees	5	0	1.000
Hamms Beer	4	0	1.000
Meadow Gold	4	1	.800
Jolly Welders	3	2	.600
Moose Club	1	3	.250
Griesedieck	1	4	.200
Tom's TV	0	4	.000
Sealtest Milk	0	4	.000

Schedule for the week.
Monday: Sealtest vs. Tom's TV; Hamms Beer vs. Moose Club.
Tuesday: Meadow Gold vs. Jolly Welders; Sealtest vs. Griesedieck.
Thursday: Hamms Beer vs. Jaycees; Moose Club vs. Tom's TV.

Tar Heels In Mountains

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — Four members of North Carolina's basketball team of next season will play the game this summer for a Catskill mountain resort hotel. They are Pete Brennan, Joe Quigg, Stan Groll and Harvey Salz.

Start Swimming Class With Summer Program

Swimming in the summer recreation program for children will start on Monday, June 11, and continue on until Friday, Aug. 3, according to the School District R-VI athletic director, Bob Powers who is in charge of the program assisted by Miss Virginia Hayter, also of the high school faculty.

Swimming will be held on Monday and Wednesday of each week starting at 9 a.m. at the Liberty Park swimming pool in Sedalia. The charge will be 15 cents per student per swim.

Fortuna students will be picked up at the grade school there at 7:45 a.m. and Syracuse students at the A. C. Thomas business establishment there at a few minutes past 8 a.m. Tipton students will meet at the grade school here at 8 a.m. and all will be returned to their places of departure, swimming to cease at the pool at 11:30 a.m.

Coach Powers says that no student will be allowed to swim without written permission from their parents.

One estimate is that 27,650,000 Americans play some kind of musical instrument.

State Patrol Is Sponsoring Speed Drive

"Arrive Alive—Slow Down and Live!"

That's the slogan of the current speed control program which the Missouri State Highway Patrol and the National Safety Council are sponsoring this month in cooperation with the "Slow Down and Live" program of the National Conference of State Safety Coordinators. It's also a pretty good maxim for any motorist to live by.

In commenting on the program, Capt. George W. Pate, commanding officer, Troop A, Missouri State Highway Patrol, stressed the necessity of impressing the average driver with the importance of setting his speed to suit the prevailing conditions.

"Much has been said about the speed demon's role in the traffic accident toll, and rightly so," Captain Pate said. "But too many people lose sight of the fact that many drivers invite accidents by driving at speeds too fast for conditions, even though these speeds are far below what is thought of as 'burning up the road'."

Capt. Pate said the average driver should check constantly to see that his speed is safe for conditions of weather, traffic, road, the mechanical condition of his car and his own physical and mental condition at the time.

Much of the dangerous haste that involves ordinary drivers in traffic accidents comes from the too-prevalent habit of not allowing enough time for the daily schedule," Capt. Pate said. "Trying to make up a few minutes in traffic can be deadly."

Capt. Pate pointed out that the driver who is obsessed with making time will not slow down for heavy traffic, slippery or rough roads, reduced visability, fatigue or other physical disability. Moreover, his preoccupation with the time element impairs his judgment.

"My advice to drivers is to allow enough time to make the journey without pressure," Capt. Pate said. "If you do happen to get a late start, don't try to make up time on the way. It's better to get there late than not a all!"

Pettis County NFO Invites District Meet

The Pettis County chapter of the National Farm Organization is making plans to invite the district convention to be held in Sedalia sometime in the near future. Dates for the convention will be set by the national organization.

County President Olen Downs announced Lee Staley, president of the NFO, has been invited to return here for the convention and has indicated his acceptance.

President Staley recently spoke to a open meeting of the Pettis County group at the courthouse which was attended by members from adjoining counties, and at that time he expressed a desire to return to Sedalia. It was then the invitation was extended.

Downs announced recent figures received by him as to the NFO membership is that at the present time it has expanded to more than 170,000 and includes many eastern states at the present time.

At the recent meeting here, President Staley said, "We farmers look forward to the man who is interested in agriculture and the best interest to the farmers themselves," with reference to the coming national election.

4-H Judging Day

There is less than a month left before 4-H Judging Day and we hope that all 31 clubs in the county will be represented at this event. We feel that judging is one of the most important phases of 4-H club work and hope that the community and project leaders are encouraging their boys and girls to take part in this event. Another thing project leaders should be working on is to have their members give reasons why they placed the class the way they did. This is just to protect their judgment and express their findings and it goes a long way towards eliminating guessing. By luck a person could place a class correctly without even looking at the class. With reasons the member will examine the class very closely. You can't over-emphasize this point.

Share the Fun

The Pettis County Rural Youth Organization has expressed an interest in aiding the county 4-H program by sponsoring "Share the Fun" if your club and several others are interested. This really fits into the recreational phase of club work but if handled properly it is also a good citizensihp tool. It also will be an opportunity for 4-H youngsters to get before a crowd and aid them in public presentations. The Rural Youth Organization is anxious to know how your club feels about this proposition so please discuss the letter that has been sent to your community leader. If you have any questions about this event it might be wise to direct them to the RYO president, Mr. Bud Staples, LaMonte, Missouri.

Chicken of Tomorrow

All entrants to the Chicken of Tomorrow Contest that do not have broiler production record sheets may secure them at the extension office. You must submit this completed record with your entry to the State Fair so it can be used to determine your weight gain per pound of feed. Accurate records are necessary to get correct answers.

To 4-H Club Leaders

The following was taken from the National 4-H Club Magazine and really applies to our 4-H leaders in Pettis County.

"You plant, and more gardens flourish
Than your hand could tend;
You call, and more socks are mended
Than your needles could ever mend.
You lead and there follows later
A power that you cannot know;
For the ones you teach shall climb out of reach,
When the seeds you are planting grow."

Power of A Woman

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP) — Patrolmen Paul Hawkins and Elmer Grossman retreated to the safety of their prowl car when the 175-pound St. Bernard dog crept toward them menacingly.

Then the power of a woman asserted itself. Mrs. William Koonce, who had called police to pick up the stray dog, patted the pooch on the head, led him to the car and sat beside him on the rear seat.

Then it was off to jail, where the dog was placed in a cell for safekeeping.

Conclude Bible School

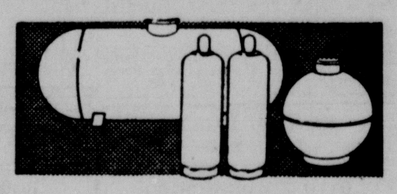

The Warsaw Methodist Vacation Bible School was concluded with a program held at the church Sunday evening, June 3. Each department of the school presented a song or scripture reading learned during the week and Ricky Bibb concluded the program with a reading entitled, "A Christian's Gettysburg Address." Rev. William Hall, pastor of the church, presented the Certificates of Recognition to those who had attended Bible School. The handwork done by each department was on display in the classrooms after the services.

Mayflower Ghost Story: Rebuilding of Pilgrims' Vessel

Publicity Stunt Backfires Into Something Real

By TOM A. CULLEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

BRIXHAM, England —(NEA)— This is a true ghost story. It is the story of how the Mayflower II, which started out as an Anglo-American publicity stunt, backfired on her planners—that is, turned into something genuine.

Someone should have warned the bowler-hatted businessmen who dreamed up the Mayflower II project that the ghosts of the Pilgrim Fathers are not to be tampered with lightly.

Thanks to their lending a heavenly hand, the Mayflower II is now rising on the ways down here in Brixham. Her ribs are all in place and are being fleshed out with planks shaped under steam pressure. Already she is a thing of beauty.

The Mayflower II will be launched on Sept. 6; then after trials she will sail for Plymouth, Mass., next April, captained by an Australian, Capt. Alan J. Villiers, and manned by a crew of 21.

The 180-ton vessel will cost $240,000 to build, but not a cent of it will be American money. The Mayflower II is strictly a gift of the people of Britain to the people of the United States, and she will be as exact a replica of the original ship as the human brain can devise.

In the United States she will be exhibited up and down the eastern seaboard and then turned over to the Plymouth Plantation, Inc., a reconstruction of the early Pilgrim settlement.

The Mayflower project was to be another of those "hands-across-the-seas" affairs. It might have died in the oak-panelled board rooms of British businessmen had it not been for the ghosts.

CAPT. ALAN VILLIERS will sail Mayflower II to America.

Money? Pilgrims laugh at money, for hadn't the good Lord said that He would provide? And wasn't there something in the Bible about "cast down thy net?" Sure enough, when the businessmen hauled in their net, there in its meshes was the Lord Mayor of London.

With the Lord Mayor behind it, money began to pour into the Mayflower project—in dribs and drabs at first, then in a steady trickle.

Blue-prints? By coincidence Naval Architect William A. Baker, of Boston, had just completed five years of research into the construction of the original Mayflower, having ransacked maritime museums and naval archives.

There, ready at hand, was as perfect a set of blue-prints as a shipbuilder could desire. Taking a gamble on the payment, Shipbuilder Stuart Upham, of Brixham, Devon, agreed to tackle the job. The keel for the Mayflower II was laid last July.

To enter the fishing port of Brixham (pop. 9,000) is to set one's watch back 300 years. Its people live in houses with the same sort of thatched roofs that the Pilgrims knew, and their way of life hasn't changed much with the centuries.

Their ancestors bowled with Drake, and afterwards sailed with him against the Spainsh Armada. So it is not surprising that the men of Brixham should take readily to the building of the Mayflower II, reviving skills that were thought to be dead.

They are learning again how to handle the adze, the gimblett, the chock bevel and the maul, tools with which their ancestors made British square-riggers supreme on the seas.

These men have salt and tar in their veins. They have an eye for the sleek beauty of a ship and a nostalgia for craftsmanship. There are young men among them, too—boys like 18-year-old Martin Tucker, who works as a shipwright's apprentice, and who jump at the chance to sail under canvas.

Back in the London board rooms businessmen worried and fretted about the Mayflower II project. They said the materials to build the ship couldn't be found. But the Pilgrim ghosts only laughed. Devon abounds in forests of oak trees of the type that went into three-masted vessels. Some of them were saplings when the original Mayflower was built.

SHIPBUILDER STUART UPHAM works on a model of the Mayflower. He is also building real-sized replica for U.S. trip.

All it needed was men with eyes to visualize the twisted and knarled trunks in terms of a ship's hull and to trim them down to size.

And then there was the problem of the ropes and canvas, on which the ship's safety will depend. Twelve tons of rope will go into construction of the Mayflower II, rope of a tough, chafe-resisting type that is no longer manufactured.

After six months of research, a Glasgow firm has come up with a special rope which should see the Mayflower II safely across the Atlantic.

Perhaps the most startling evidence of ghostly influence is the change that has come over the people of Brixham, themselves. When work started on the Mayflower II the skeptics shook their heads doubtfully. It was "Upham's Folly."

Perhaps the change first became noticeable when the town decided to give the Mayflower II its ship's bell. The gift may seem modest, but it represents a contribution of three cents from every man, woman and child in Brixham.

The spirit of generosity spread. Boston school children are making furniture for the captain's cabin. A sail-maker in Scotland has donated thousands of dollars worth of canvas. Lloyd's of London is giving the log book. Paint, and clothing for the crew, even rum—all have been donated.

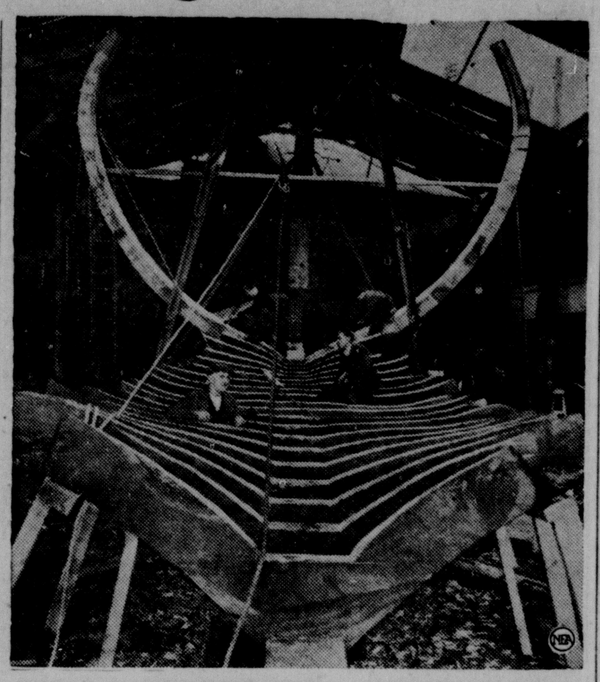

Again, the change may have taken place when some of the Brixham women volunteered to dress up in Pilgrim costume and to show visitors around the shipyard. They even boned up on early American history so that they could answer questions intelligently.

Perhaps it is the same influence that prompts the visitor to snatch up a wooden chip from beneath the Mayflower's hull and to pass it around among the workmen for autographs. A sense of being a part of history in the making, and of belonging to something bigger, call it the "Pilgrim Spirit."

It comes as no surprise that Brixham has started holding prayer-meetings in the shipyard.

The big test is yet to come: getting the Mayflower II across the Atlantic, once she is launched. But there is no lack of applicants for the crew. Over one-third of them are women (the Mayflower II is taking none), and they range from a retired civil servant in Yorkshire, looking for adventure at 67, to a 14-year-old boy, Robin Tubb, of Whitstable, Kent.

Some of the more colorful are

RIBS OF THE MAYFLOWER II begin to rise above keel, fashioned from 120-year-old oak tree at Brixham, England.

Viscount St. Davids, 38, who traces his descent from Robin Hood; and Albert Bestic from Bray, County Wicklow, who has been four times around Cape Horn in square-rigged ships, and who survived the sinking of the Lusitania in 1915.

The Mayflower II's skipper, Capt. Alan Villiers, has, himself, been around the world in the full-rigged Joseph Conrad. More recently he has been sailing Arab ships in the Indian Ocean to get in practice for the Mayflower voyage.

Villiers, who measures six-feet-five in his stocking feet, is confident he can pick the right crew. The British spirit of adventure is certainly not lacking; and with a bit of ghostly aid, the Mayflower II should arrive off Plymouth Rock without mishap.

Adopt Greek Youth—

The Mehans Go to New York To Meet New Family Member

Mr. and Mrs. George Mehan, LaMonte, Route 1, and their six-year-old adopted son, Johnny, are on their way to New York to meet a new member of their family, a ten-year-old boy from Greece whom the Mehans' are adopting.

Mr. Mehan came from Greece himself when he was 17 years old and is a farmer in the LaMonte neighborhood.

A year ago last July, when they heard about foreign children for adoption, they felt it would be nice if they would adopt a foreign child instead of another American child as they had planned to do. So they went to the welfare office where they talked to Mrs. Ena Killingsworth, child welfare worker, and told her they wanted to adopt a foreign child — a Grecian child— because they felt it would be easier for the youngster to adjust to his home in America if the father could speak his language.

Mrs. Killingsworth was very happy to do anything she could do, so she started writing letters, and the time and red tape dragged on. The little boy's tenth birthay drew closer and closer, and if he reached that day before the papers were all signed and everything was set he wouldn't be able to come because of the immigration laws. His birthday was April 1, and so the completing of the plans were hurried as April neared. Then, at last, everything was ready.

The child, whose father was killed in guerrilla warfare and whose mother was not able to keep him, was eager to come to America. He lived with relatives in Greece, and life was a bit rough for him.

In the farm home of the Mehans there was an eagerness, too, with many plans being made. Monday the family will leave for New York, Tuesday they will contact the International Agency, and on Wednesday their little boy will arrive from Greece.

The trip back home will be slower and they will spend a little time sightseeing so that Johnny and his new brother from Greece will have a better opportunity to get acquantied before they arrive home.

Hitch Hiker

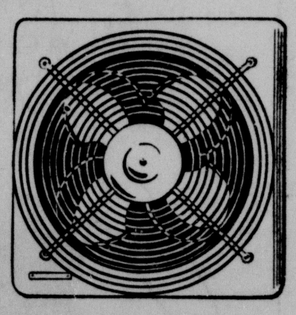

DANVILLE, Va. (AP)—Mrs. Arlon Loving heard a strange sound as she drove her station wagon for several miles. She stopped at a service station, had the vehicle raised on a grease rack for a quick inspection. Perched precariously on a rear spring and straddled over the axle was a tiny kitten.

The kitten seemed none the worse for its buggy ride.

To make ordinary rooms more exciting add "magic" to your home—unexpected touches, elegant ar amusing to make a house enchanting. "Magic" doesn't have to be expensive, all it takes is a little effort and imagination.

Accessories on tables and shelves should not be just things bought to fill space—they should be objects which have a special meaning for you and your family.

Travel souvenirs are wonderful but not souvenirs in the usual sense. Wicker baskets in odd shapes and colors, Sea shells found on the beach or colorful scenic cards framed on one big mat to remind you of a pleasant vacation.

Your Wardrobe

by Frances Sagaloff at Sage's

Going to a June wedding? Be it formal or very simple you do want to be properly dressed. For most church weddings, afternoon or evening you may choose any of the beautiful summer dresses now available. It can be dark or light, plain or print. If it is a simple wedding and the bride has selected a street dress then be sure you don't wear an extremely dressy dress so you won't be over-dressed. A small hat is always appropriate and of course, gloves, when you attend a church wedding. Beautiful pastel cotton dresses with either matching accessories or white make wonderful afternoon outfits. For mothers of the bride and immediate family you will find lace in either pastel or dark shades, made especially for such an important occasion. Many times you are invited to a wedding when you are not sure just what type of wedding it is and it is quite proper to ask someone who is close to the bride so you will know exactly what you should wear. As always it is better to be under-dressed rather than be over-dressed.

Senate, House Committees Agree on Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee has agreed with the House on most of the proposed spending for navigation, power and flood control projects in Kansas and Missouri.

Both the House and the Senate committees have set up $14,750,000 for Table Rock Reservoir in Missouri and nine million dollars for the Tuttle Creek Dam in Kansas. Both projects are under construction.

The Senate committee Friday rocemmended three increases over the House-approved figures. The House allowed $800,000 for flood control at the two Kansas Citys, and the Senate committee proposed one million. The House allocated two million for the Missouri River from Kansas City to the mouth, and the Senate group hiked that to three million. The Senate committee recommended $800,000 for the Pomme de Terre Reservoir in Missouri, $300,000 more than the House approved.

Other projects on which there was agreement:

Kansas — Abilene $200,000; Salina $400,000; Topeka $400,000; Toronto Reservoir $4,500,000; Wichita and Valley Center $1,163,00.

Missouri—Canton $275,000; Cape Girardeau $1,000,000; Perry County drainage districts 1, 2 and 3, $800,000.

In the bill on reclamation projects the Senate committee agreed with the House in proposing $2,055,000 for the Kirwin, Kas., project and $540,000 for the Webster, Kas., job.

There also was agreement on $2,850,000 for Missouri River agricultural levees in Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri, and $3,300,000 for work on the Missouri River from Kansas City to Omaha.

In proposing planning funds, the Senate committee had these amounts (House amounts in parentheses:

Kansas — Manhattan $40,000 ($40,000); Ottawa $80,000 ($80,000); Pamona Reservoir $85,000 ($85,000); Strawn Reservoir $50,000 ($50,000); Council Grove Reservoir $150,000 (none); Elk City Reservoir $75,000 (none); Milford Reservoir $90,000 (none).

Missouri — Rabius River drainage district $75,000 ($75,000); St. Louis $551,000 ($511,000); Bear Louis $551,00 ($511,000); Bear Creek $60,000 ($60,000).

Public Library Notes—

'Vacation Loan' Plan Starts; Gives Readers More Time

The Sedalia Public Library will offer its patrons the advantage of taking a number of books on "vacation loan," a plan which has been popular with vacationers in past years.

According to Miss Mary Kay English, librarian, any registered adult borrower under the plan may take ten novels of non-fiction books for an entire month instead of the regular two week period, with the privilege of an additional two week renewal. Users of the children's department may take four books. The library, however, reserves the right to issue certain popular or recent books for shorter periods.

To keep the records straight, the librarian said, borrowers are requested to indicate whenever books are to be charged as vacation loan instead of the regular two week period. The extended loan privilege will continue through Sept. 15.

According to the librarian, library patrons find more time in the summer to read such "classic" novels as Tolstoi's "War and Peace," Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," Thackeray's "Vanity Fair," Hervey Allen's "Anthony Adverse," Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind" and others. Patrons also make use of the long-term vacation issue privilege to read books on hobbies and self-improvement or brush up on certain technical subjects. All patrons are invited to take advantage of this extended loan privilege and add the pleasure of reading to your vacation enjoyment.

Kansas City to Vote On Earnings Tax

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The City Council has decided to submit an earnings tax proposal to the voters at the November election.

The council originally intended to call for a vote on the proposal at the August primary, but concluded there wasn't enough time to campaign for it properly.

Council members said five million dollars more revenue annually is needed to keep government services in step with the city's growth.

City Manager L. P. Cookingham was directed to prepare estimates on how much revenue would come from a tax of ½ of 1 per cent on all salaries and net business profits, or a 1 per cent tax.

Dee Van Winkle Will Attend Conference

Van Winkle of Sedalia will be among those attending the annual sales conference of the Security Benefit Life Insurance Co. at the Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs, Colorado, June 11 through 14. Each year the company sends a select group of general agents and agents from its 28 state operating territory to the sales conference, at which time they have the opportunity to meet with representatives from the home office in Topeka, Kan., and are introduced to the latest developments in the field of life insurance.

Many Factors Bring End To TV Shows

By BOB THOMAS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Why does a TV show go off the air?

The most obvious reason is because it isn't popular. But some shows stay on with meager ratings while others with creditable figures are dropped.

Take "It's Always Jan." While it was no world beater, the Saturday night show managed to amass highly respectable ratings and an enthusiastic following. Yet it is one of this season's casualties. Why?

I put the question to the star of the show, Janis Paige, who is doing fine business with her act at the Hotel New Frontier.

"It was a combination of things; there was no single reason," she replied. "We had been getting good ratings, but the sponsors were undecided about renewing. They kept asking for extensions of the option."

Finally, Janis and her producer, Artie Stander, who also is her husband, decided not to extend the time.

"If they really wanted the show, that was something else," she remarked. "But since they were undecided, we weren't so sure we wanted to continue it ourselves.

"For one thing, we wanted to do other things. Artie wanted to do some serious writing. I had a couple of picture deals cooking as well as another stage play. And I wanted to get out and play night clubs, which I enjoy. When you're doing a TV show, you're never aware of the audience; I like to hear them out there.

"There's another thing, too. I am very happily married. You don't have much time for married life if you have to work 18 hours a day seven days a week, as you do on a TV film show."

End Adv for PMs sat. June 9.

Dictionary of Assyrian Is Epic 35-Year Project

CHICAGO (AP) — If the ancient Babylonians had a word for it, University of Chicago scholars plan to include it in their new Assyrian Dictionary. The English translation of antique words taken from clay tablets will aid in the study of history that predates the writing of scrolls on papyrus.

The new Assyrian Dictionary is a milestone in the preservation of ancient Semitic culture. It is the result of spending $800,000 and 35 years of labor by 50 scholars.

A. Leo Oppenheim, professor of Assyriology of the University of Chicago's Oriental Institute, is the dictionary's fifth editor. The 19 volume series will not be completed for another decade. It will contain a total of 30,000 words found in cuneiform sign on clay tablets, monuments and metal unearthed in the Near East.

The cuneiform consisted of nearly 1,000 different tiny wedge-shaped signs.

The clay tablets on which they are found date as far back as 2000 B.C., with the latest ones from about 100 A.D. Many of them are dictionaries themselves.

Prof. Oppenheim is doubtful that our language will last as well as that of the ancient Babylonians.

"How do we know how microfilm will behave in 2,000 years?" he asks.

Keys to Theft

PONCA CITY, Okla. (AP) — A frightened housewife telephoned police shortly after midnight and reported the keys had just been stolen from the family car.

"The thief can't be far away. I just heard the car door slam," she added.

Two officers rushed to the scene and after an intensive search of the area found the keys—in the woman's purse.

'Hidden Catch' Is Open Secret In English Book

By TOM A. CULLEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

LONDON — (NEA) — For $1.50 a Russian agent can buy from any London bookstall a manual of all the "escape aids" that are likely to be used by Allied prisoners to break out of Russian camps in the event of a future war.

The escape gadgets, which saved the lives of thousands of American and British airmen in the last war, are all described in detail. How the British War Office allowed the book to be published is a "blooper" which has yet to be explained away.

Certainly, "The Hidden Catch," as the book is called, will be required reading for the Soviet security staff for months to come.

The escape aids are all the inventions of Maj. Clayton Hutton, formerly of the British Intelligence Corps, who claims that they were all eventually discovered by the Germans; that the book, therefore, gives nothing away.

Nevertheless, described in detail with photographs are such ingenious devices as non-rustling maps printed on silk; magnetic fly buttons which rotate to form a compass; luminous table-tennis balls for the guidance of aircraft; steel saws encased in bootlaces.

Most of these devices were used at one time or another by American airmen bailing out over enemy territory in World War II.

Maj. Hutton, or "Clutty" as he is known to his friends, is one of those eccentric geniuses who cause service "brass" to turn green with frustrated rage. A believer in unorthodoxy, he never went "through channels" when he could cut a corner.

For example, Hutton had no time to read all the escape books that had been written after the first World War. He approached the headmaster of Rugby, the famous English school, and asked for 25 senior boys to read and digest a truckload of escape books from the British Museum.

Four days later the headmaster turned over the lists of what the schoolboys considered to be indispensable escape equipment: "Maps that won't rustle, dyes, compasses, wire, copying paper, pens, needles and tools."

The major then set to work to manufacture some of these gadgets. He devised compasses so small that they could be concealed in military buttons, collar studs and the stems of pipes. As briar was on short supply in England, the Royal Air Force picked up 20,000 half-finished briar pipes to be fitted with compasses, in a daring dash to Nazi-occupied Bordeaux.

On another occasion, Hutton caused a Japanese ship carrying a special kind of wood pulp to be diverted to Dover so that he would have non-rustling paper for his maps.

The "Mark II" fountain pen, as he calls it, was Hutton's masterpiece. Before he finished tinkering with this innocent-looking object, it concealed no less than five compasses, maps, dyestuffs, aspirin and benzedrine pills. (The dyes were intended to disguise the military clothing of escaping prisoners)

Hutton next turned his attention to flying boots. Thanks to the major, the American or British airman forced down in an enemy zone soon learned to look to his boots for safety.

From the tongue of the right boot he could extract a midget knife. By cutting off the upper part of the boots he could provide himself with (1) a pair of non-military-looking shoes and (2) a warm, fleece-lined vest made from fastening the two uppers together.

The hollow boot-heels concealed maps, and one of the bootlaces contained a wire saw which might prove useful. To cap it all, the steel tag of the bootlace was magnetized for use as a compass needle.

Not all of Hutton's gadgets were successful. A "self-heating" can of soup, for example, turned out to be disastrous. It was intended to provide hot nourishment for air crews on night operations, and was simple enough in theory.

Hutton placed the can of soup inside a larger can which contained quicklime and water in separate compartments. All one had to do was to punch holes which would permit the water to trickle onto the quicklime, and — presto! — hot soup.

Or so Hutton explained to a doubting Air Commodore. When the commodore punched the holes and turned the can upside down there was an ominous hiss, which became a fizz and then a gurgle. Then, with a boom which rattled the chandeliers, the can exploded, sending its scalding contents over furniture and carpets, starting fires in all directions.

A startled office staff rushed in with stirrup pumps and extinguishers. Under cover of the smoke barrage, Hutton grabbed his hat and edged towards the door. "I still think it was a good idea," he says.

Survival Report

HOLDENVILLE, Okla. (AP)—The driver walked away from this accident reported by the Oklahoma Highway Patrol:

The car went out of control, travelled 390 feet and jumped a 12-foot ditch. It went on another 228 feet and tore out a 75-foot stretch of fence.

Then the car broke a power-line pole and three 7,200-volt lines fell. One hit the top of the car and arced out. The other two became entangled with the fence which was wrapped around the car.

Printing Contrast

ASHTON, Idaho (AP)—Ralph Hunter, editor of the Ashton Herald, received a letter from Heber Hartvigsen of the San Diego Union, who published the first newspaper in Ashton. Hartvigsen wrote that the Union's new presses could turn out 52,500 copies of a 96-page newspaper in an hour.

Hunter made some computations and wrote back that at that rate, one edition of the weekly Herald could keep the Union's presses humming for exactly three and one-third seconds.

Neglect of Fences Leads To Expensive Replacement

By MR. FIX
Distributed by NEA Service

When spring rains have subsided and dry weather prevails—that's the time to look to your garden or boundary fences for signs of winter damage, and to repair them.

Wind, rain and frost punish fences so severely that annual maintenance is a must. Neglect invites deterioration in the form of rust, rot and decay, which can only lead to eventual wholesale replacement of a fence line.

Protective coatings have to be renewed at regular intervals—paint, generally every third year; stain, as often as every other year.

Fence posts need to be aligned and straightened yearly. Frost action, wind pressure and unstable soil work in combination to loosen posts, causing them to lean or topple.

Often an automobile bumper jack can be employed to straighten a fence post which cannot be pulled erect by hand. Brace the jack base against a 2x4 stake driven into the ground near the post and place a piece of scrap wood between the jack's lifting flange and post. Then rack out the jack and use a spirit level to tell when the post is plumb. Tamp crushed stone and soil around its base.

Where unstable soil contributes to fence toppling it's a good idea to pour a concrete collar around the post to a depth of about 12 inches, making the hole larger at the bottom than at grade level. Coat the exposed lower portion of the post with roofing asphalt to a height about two inches above ground, then pour the concrete collar.

If wind pressure seems to be the chief offender, it may be necessary to brace the fence with boards or guy wires. One attractive way of bracing a wind-blown fence is to erect smaller fences at right angles, but attached, to the main fence.

Nails holding rails or pickets are likely to work loose when fence posts wander out of position. Result: wood joints open up and water trapped in them brings on rot. The open joints should be saturated with a wood preservative — pentachlorophenol or zinc naphthenate. Then the nails should be redriven or, if rusted, replaced with nonrusting aluminum or galvanized nails.

Rot is, of course, the greatest threat to a wooden fence. Dig away soil at the ground line around posts and look for decay there. If minor, the decay can be halted—temporarily, at least—by clearing away the bad wood and soaking the affected part with a wood preservative.

On the other hand, if decay is severe you can either attempt to repair the post or get a new one. For a sound repair, cut off the post just above ground level and splice on a new base.

You can butt the parts together, end to end, and join them by bolting steel "splints" to opposite sides of the joint. The splints should be eight to 10-inch plates of ¼-inch steel. Or, you can lap cut the ends of both pieces and fasten them together with bolts through the half-lap joint.

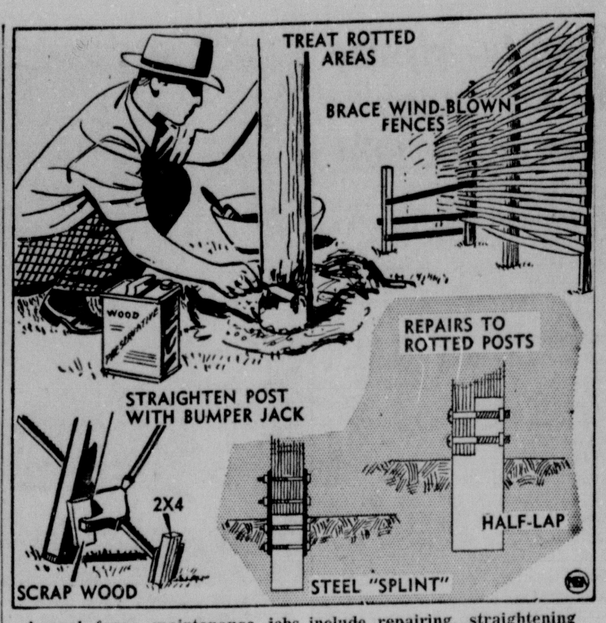

Treat the new end of the post with wood preservative before resetting it. This is accomplished by letting the post stand 24 hours or longer in a bucket filled with preservative solution. The solution should completely cover the spliced joint.

Polio-Shot Reward

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The children who go to the office of Dr. Phil Trimmer Jr. for polio shots think it's fun. After each shot, Dr. Trimmer writes out a prescription for his patient calling for one ice cream cone at a nearby drug store.

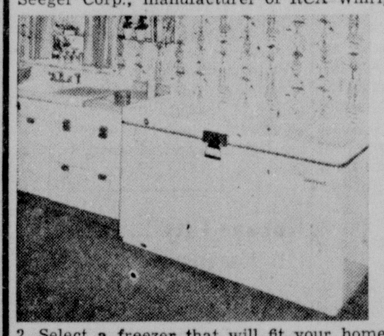

Annual fence maintenance jobs include repairing, straightening and taking steps to curb rot.

What To Look For When You Buy A Food Freezer

A food freezer is a relatively new appliance. Since most housewives who go out to buy one have had no previous freezer shopping experience, here are a few tips from home economists at Whirlpool-Seeger Corp., manufacturer of RCA Whirlpool freezers:

1. Size your freezer to your family and your location. A rule of thumb is to allow four cubic feet of freezer space for each family member. If you live in the country and have access to fresh fruits and vegetables, if your fisherman or hunter husband always brings home a good catch, you will want a larger model. It's nice to be able to freeze in-season foods for out-of-season serving.

2. Select a freezer that will fit your home. If you have a utility room, large basement, garage or family room-kitchen you should consider a chest freezer. Its counter-high flat top will do double duty. For example, if you place your freezer in the same room where you do your laundry, the top will serve well as a place for sorting clothes or drying sweaters. Some models may be fitted with a formica top to contribute to exterior function and add a decorator color touch. A vertical freezer is an excellent choice for a home that is short of floor space. Remember, if you plan a basement or garage installation, be sure to select a freezer with a lock built into the handle.

3. Choose a freezer that is convenient to use. Cabinet interiors should be well-lighted and easy to clean. A chest unit with lift-out baskets permits easy accessability to most-used items.

Dad Foresees Emancipation From Summer Yard Chores

BY KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

This summer, thousands of healthy, sensible American homemakers are going to fall into a trap. The trap opens when you innocently suggest the lawn needs mowing. It snaps shut when your husband places your dainty hands on the handle of the power lawn mower and says, "All you have to do is steer it."

Unfortunately, if it's one of the new power mowers, that's about all you DO have to do. One of the largest manufacturers of mower engines (Power Products) has worked like a beaver to overcome valid feminine objections to power mowers (too dirty, too heavy, too noisy).

Lightweight rotary mowers can now be started, idled and stopped by a single instrument panel knob on top of the engine. Engines weigh 40% to 60% less, so mowers are easier to handle.

Oil which they require is premixed with gasoline at the service station to eliminate the messy task of adding and draining oil in the crankcase.

Robert Lueloff, president of the corporation says that with the new mowers men can now safely and confidently turn over the job of mowing the lawn to the ladies.

THIS IS PROGRESS?

As further encouragement, company research experts at the testing stations have compiled recommendations on when and how to mow a lawn and how to avoid repair bills and service calls for the mower.

If you're determined the grass will be greener and neater on your side of the fence, here is the list:

Don't shave the lawn. Grass gets its energy from the blades, and, if it's to remain healthy, only a small part of each stalk (one half inch to one inch) should be clipped at a time. In cool weather, the mower should be set to cut about two inches above the ground.

During hot, dry spells, a minimum grass height of three inches is recommended. Bent grass can be trimmed a little closer. When an established lawn is being reseeded, older grass can be trimmed to about one inch so that it won't hinder the new growth. First mowing of a new lawn should be done when the new grass is about three inches high.

When you're all set to steer that mower, a good plan is to divide the lawn into section of convenient size and to start mowing around the outer edges of each section in a direction which will throw the clippings inward on the next row to be mowed.

In this way, clippings are chopped a second time, preventing the windrows of cut grass. Steep terraces should be mowed up-and-down the slopes. It's better not to mow the lawn when the grass and ground are very wet or when they are exposed to the heat of the midday sun.

The experts point out that the lawn should be kept free of debris (stones, wire, rope or hard objects) which, if struck by the cutting blade, might damage the machine or be thrown out with considerable force. This is easier said than done, in our experience when you have small children and sand boxes appropriating part of the lawn as a playground. It takes careful raking before mowing.

All safety guards should be kept in place any time the mower is in operation. Train small children to stay away from it. Keep the mower free of grass clippings and spilled gasoline or oil. The screen over the carburetor air intake filter is apt to become clogged with clippings; use an old whiskbroom or stiff brush to clean it.

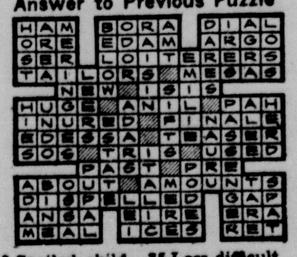

Standard two- or five-gallon safety cans with flexible pouring spouts are convenient to use when refueling. Should the machine fail to start, unscrew the filler cap and make sure there is fuel in the tank. Service men report that many mowers brought to them have nothing wrong except that they are out of gasoline.

Bedtime Blues

MENOMINEE, Mich. (AP) — Mrs. William McKenney looked almost everywhere before calling out state police to look for her 4-year-old daughter, Kay Ann. The place she forgot to look was in the child's bed.

"I didn't look there because she never goes to bed unless we put her there," Mrs. McKenney apologized to weary police officers.

Accident Pictures

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—A plan to equip the state highway patrol for photographing traffic accidents has been approved by the Minnesota attorney general's office. The pictures will be used in compiling accident prevention data.

Cadillac

Just Graduated...To a Cadillac!

It's graduation time! And this happy gentleman—appropriately enough—has just gone through some important graduation exercises of his own.

It was just a few minutes ago, in fact, that he stood in his dealer's showroom and accepted the keys to his first Cadillac car.

But even though he now holds his final degree, so to speak, in motor car ownership, his education in all the good things of motordom is only beginning.

Take performance, for instance. The car is so smooth and powerful, and so nimble and obedient that it automatically revises a man's standards of automotive performance.

Consider comfort. Rolling along the broadest boulevard or taking the roughest bylane, the car is incredibly smooth and level in ride.

And think about pride and satisfaction. What an extraordinary feeling it is to sit in command of the "car of cars"—and find yourself the subject of admiring glances on every hand.

Have you ever considered how wonderful it would be to "graduate" to Cadillac? If you have, then this is a marvelous time to make the move.

Certainly, it has never been easier to sign your name to the title. We are, happily, in a position to offer you prompt delivery on your favorite model—and we know you will be pleased to learn how practical Cadillac ownership has now become.

Why not stop in while the springtime is still with us—and spend an hour at the wheel?

It's a wonderful season and a wonderful car—and a wonderful opportunity to enjoy them both!

Vacation Edition | SEDALIA, MISSOURI | June 10, 1956

Here Comes Vacation

The old gray skies of winter have disappeared for awhile and in their place are the fresh blue skies of summer and along with them comes vacation time—time to relax, have fun and enjoy the sun.

Summertime entertainment is available at home too with all the facilities at Sedalia's parks. The little girl at the top left is making use of the tots' swings at Liberty Park; second from the top, a youth is trying out his diving ability at the Liberty Park pool; third from the top, Washington park teeter-totters are getting a workout; and on the bottom of the page is a group of youngsters riding the merry-go-round at Washington Park.

Play clothes and swimsuits are the vogue and trip planning is a favorite pastime for many at this time of year. Some plan trips across the nation but for those who wish to stay closer to home, Missouri offers a variety of vacation spots. Nationally famous vacation areas are right here at our own back door.

Suggestions on what to see and where are given in this special vacation edition.

Look Inside and You'll Find Pictures of Places to Go

Sedalia Has Many Facilities for Summer Recreation

By D. Kelly Scrutor

Sedalia's got it. Got the spots for summer recreation and places for visitors to enjoy their vacation without traveling cross country to see the sights or sports events. Even for weekend relaxation, Sedalia's still got it.

With the growth of Sedalia, the city has not let the city grow without improvements in many instances for a place of relaxation and fun. The Liberty Park has been improved steadily as funds were made available. This park is considered one of the finest of any city the size of Sedalia and equals many larger city parks.

The addition of the Vermont Park likewise added a spot for relaxation and fun. It has been beautified, equipped with picnic benches and furnaces, a small baseball diamond, play swings and so forth.

Over in northeast Sedalia, Housel Park has as its main attraction its Industrial Softball League which uses the park almost nightly, while in one portion is playground equipment of swings and teeter-totters.

Southeast Sedalia has its Center Park, which like Housel Park in northeast Sedalia, has a softball diamond used by the independent softball teams. There is also playground equipment there for the children to use.

Of course Liberty Park, the oldest of the Sedalia Park system and having the greatest area of land, has the attractive power for drawing not only the children but the adults. The new picnic stoves and the picnic portion of the park can handle hundreds of persons. Many family reunions are seen weekly in this section.

The skating rink is a portion which attracts that group which loves skating and is always ready for a single skater, a couple or even large parties. Then there are the children's rides, such as the Liberty Park special railroad train, the car rides and swan ride, with another new ride having been added — the small rocket ships.

Thousands of young Sedalians have made the round trip on the one of few miniature steam-engine-pulled trains in the country. This attraction alone draws the youngest of children and ever up to grandpa and grandma. The new building which houses the train at night now furnishes the added air of a real train ride through a tunnel through which the rails now pass.

The new recreational area which has been established since the construction of the Jennie Jaynes Lewis Memorial Stadium, is another area which is daily increasing with visitors. The tennis courts, croquet courts and horseshoe pits are in good condition. The swimming pool, although a little chilly at the present time, is going to be most inviting when the sun does come out and starts beaming down.

The Little League ball diamond is seeing a lot of action in its own park, while over in the big baseball park the action there is keeping the diamond worked out — Babe Ruth, Ban Johnson, and now the renewed Sedalia Athletics teams.

There isn't an idle night in Sedalia for sports fans. On Monday, Tuesday and Thursday are the regular league nights for the Sedalia Industrial League at Housel Park. Wednesday and Thursday nights are makeup games.

Then the Babe Ruth League has two games being played on the Liberty Park diamond, Monday and Wednesday nights, with Friday night used for makeup nights of games postponed in that circuit.

Thursday and Sunday's see the Ban Johnson teams in actions when the schedule of the Central Missouri Leagues pulls them into Sedalia.

Tuesday and some Thursday nights, as well as Sundays, the Athletics play on the Liberty Park diamond, if they are not playing a return home game with some other team. The Athletics are trying to schedule the greater portion of the season on the local diamond.

Of course, the Center Park has independent games being played, with various nights scheduled.

If a softball fan can't find a game at Center Park, he or she can usually be supplied with that type of sport over in Housel.

Little Leaguers furnish plenty of action in their park on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights. If it isn't raining and nothing is on in any of the other parks on those nights, the Little League cannot be underestimated for real baseball entertainment by these youngsters.

The Park Department welcomes the holding of family reunions, especially in Liberty Park. They enjoy seeing family groups using the picnic grounds. They want the parks used to show the appreciation of the public for their endeavors of making the park beautiful and inviting.

world of young fishermen as well world of young fishermen as wlel as some fathers who are teaching their children the art of fishing. When there are crowds on hand enjoying themselves, the park department feels like it has accomplished something.

There is hardly an idle piece of playground equipment in Liberty Park in the early evenings and many afternoons.

A new arrangement of moving the fences back along the south side of the drive of the park has also made it possible for more parking area, and picnic tables have been added along this area to accommodate the ever increasing visitors.

Relaxation and recreation for those who live in Sedalia or come here to spend their vacation—there is plenty of it if those person desire to take advantage of it.

Careful Planning Includes Baby on Vacation Excursion

The late Robert Benchley, one of our greatest humorists, once wrote, "Traveling with children is like traveling fourth class Bulgarian style."

Before the summer is over, millions of U.S. parents who have to travel with children on weekend trips or vacation jaunts will know what Benchley meant. But travel with children they must, for there's no other way they can go.

Actually, though, taking along the kids—even the very youngest—does NOT have to be a nightmare. If a little careful planning is done before you leave the homestead, it can even go pretty smoothly.

Veteran pediatricians of the Beech-Nut Nutrition Service, who have aided thousands of mothers with their child-rearing problems, say that rule number one is to travel light. When going by plane, this is essential. But the tip applies equally much if you're going by plane or bus, or getting there in the family car.

An auto trip should be planned in advance so you stop every day at about 3 p.m. This is the best time of day to get a motel or hotel room, where the kids can be bathed and fed. If you need any scheduling help, several leading gas firms, such as Shell Oil Co., have women's travel directors to give advice.

For mothers who travel with babies, the service has these 10 tips:

1. The right bag. There are many new shoulder carry-alls, usually inexpensive, which will save you time and trouble. The best ones have an insulated lining to carry formula or milk bottles and jars of baby food. There's a side pocket, too, for soiled diapers and panties.

2. Taking a change. Pack a change of suit or dress in case of accident. Be sure to include bib, pins and wash cloth, and an extra pair of diapers to serve as a towel. Also a favorite toy.

3. Determining supplies. The length of your trip will determine milk and food supplies. But remember — with the change of scene and excitement, the child is likely to want less food. Don't overload with too many jars and bottles. Carry several clean plastic spoons which are tucked in the carry-all bag.

4. Bottle warmer. There are bottle warming attachments which fit the car's cigar lighter outlet. They will also warm soup and vegetable jars for feeding during your travel hours.

5. Water. Since baby may balk at a change of water, it's a good idea to carry boiled water in a thermos to satisfy his taste. And take a collapsible drinking cup.

6. Sweater. Winter or summer, a sweater is handy. Select the cardigan type—easiest to slip on and off.

7. Rest. Make sure both you and baby have plenty of rest before you start. You'll have more fun and be less fretful.

8. Colds. Don't travel if baby has a cold, even a slight one.

9. Tissues. See that you have an ample supply of Kleenex.

10. Your Wear-a-Blanket is a handy item to dress baby in if you travel by car or plane. And you won't have to tote along bedding for your visit with friends or relatives.

Safety Tip

For added safety, paint the handles of hoes and rakes with black and white stripes. If you leave them lying in grass or garden, you'll be more likely to see them, less likely to trip.

The Elephant Rocks, giant boulders of granite, are located near Graniteville in the heart of the beautiful Arcadia Valley region of Missouri. The boulders, covered with moss and lichen, are a fascinating attraction to visitors by their immensity and varying formations. (Photo by Massie, Resources and Development).

No Forgotten Items---

Systematic Planning Means Better Picnic For Group

Picnics are the most fun when they're properly planned. Here's a good picnic tip: plan out the things you want to take with you the night before. Otherwise, sure as shootin', somebody will forget something that will put a damper on the whole day.

Ever sit down to grilled hamburgers, and hear somebody say, "But I thought you packed the ketchup?"

Or, "Honey, didn't you put any salt in the basket?"

Systematic Planning

It's the little things that are easiest to forget, but big or little, there's no need to forget anything if you plan your picnic in a systematic way:

1. Planning on hamburgers? Make them into patties the night before. Get out an insulated picnic bucket such as the one in the picture, and in the morning all you have to do is pack the hamburger patties on the bucket's plastic tray. Don't forget the small cans of frozen refrigerant to keep them cold and fresh.

If you're planning on having a picnic where stone grills are not provided, you'll want a handy, easy to manage portable grill that will cook a good supply of hamburgers. The grill in the picture contains an enclosed charcoal fire, weighs only a few pounds, and is one of the cleanest, safest you can buy. You carry the charcoal right inside it, so there's no mess.

2. Put your bottled goods on ice the night before. Along with the refrigerant, pack them in the morning in an insulated bucket so they'll be nice and cold when you want them. If you want hot coffee or if you want to take along unbottled lemonade, make them fresh and pour them into an insulated jug with a built-in pump dispenser. No need to carry them in an old-type jug that you have to lift or tilt to pour out of. A rubber bulb is squeezed and the liquid is pumped through a spout at the top. Even a child can get a drink when he wants it without danger of tipping over the jug.

3. Make sure you have enough of everything. Appetites go up as the result of strenuous outdoor activity. Best way to estimate how much to bring is to calculate more than you think anyone can possibly eat, then multiply by two.

4. Maybe you really want to get fancy. You can prepare individual portions of chilled chocolate mousse the night before, wrap them in aluminum foil, and pop them into the insulated bag where they will stay firm and cold. Or maybe an ice-cold potato salad or coleslaw. Put them in a sealed plastic container and store them in with the soda in the cooler. Put them in the insulated bag if you like. There's plenty of room.

2. Salt, pepper, sugar, mustard, cream or milk, catsup. Put the cream in the cooler with the other bottled beverages.

3. Don't forget a bottle opener, a good sharp knife, and a flash light (it's liable to be dark when you pick up to leave).

4. Take along a can of charcoal lighter. It will help the fire get going ever so much faster.

That's all there is to it. If you think of anything else that you usually like to take along on a picnic, by all means add it. But plan it out.

Peanut butter - vegetable sandwiches pack a wallop for the sandlot set. Combine approximately equal amounts of peanut butter, chopped raisins and raw carrot.

Add a generous amount of celery, season with salt, and blend with mayonnaise. Spread filling between slices of enriched bread.

This tongue-Swiss cheese sandwich belongs in the knapsack of all rugged individuals who like to hike, cycle or enjoy similar sports. On buttered rye bread, spread mayonnaise and place a slice of smoked tongue. Cover with a generous slice of Swiss cheese. Top with a second piece of rye bread.

Like to shape your hamburgers at home in readiness for the picnic grill? Here's a neat trick. Flatten hamburgers with the palm of your hand. Cut with a cookie cutter. Also, you might pat out the meat to the desired thickness, then cut in squares. Wrap individually in wax paper.

Buffet Style—

Impromptu Yard Picnic Includes Neighborhood

When the day turns fine after an unpromising start, or Sunday's traffic jams have made you vow "never again" to expeditions far from home, what could be more fun than an impromptu backyard buffet?

You can invite the neighbors and make the food everybody's business by having each guest bring something. Or you can look at your own well-stacked pantry shelves and put together some delicious combinations of staples. If those same shelves have a good supply of paper cups for cold and hot beverages, paper plates, dishes, containers and napkins — perhaps even a paper tablecloth or two—you're all set for a wonderful afternoon, without the bad taste of clean-up work afterward.

When you're setting up a backyard smorgasborg, don't hesitate to put together the good, plain food that everyone likes. Eating outdoors, provides as much piquant sauce to the occasion as most people want. Sliced, canned or packaged meats, sliced hard-cooked eggs, cucumber salad or some other refreshing vegetable, macaroni salad, pickles, olives, cheeses, bread, plenty of bottled beverages, salt and pepper, and mustard and your table is set with a feast. For dessert? Your local bakery's "goodies" will be popular and easy to handle.

Everyone Can Help

You don't need more than two hour's notice for an impromptu backyard buffet—and most people will be ready in less. The kids will enjoy the chance to pick and wash some of those home-grown vegetables you're so proud of—radishes, lettuce, tomatoes, onions, carrots and corn. If you set them up with a pan of water, a receptacle for garbage and a scrubbing brush, they'll be constructively busy outdoors for a while.

Meantime, you can go back to work on the macaroni salad—a pound box of macaroni will make enough for about eight hungry people. As soon as you've drained the boiled macaroni, add just enough French dressing of oil and vinegar, salt and pepper to keep it moist. Cut in some onion, green peppers, pimientos, and whatever else you fancy. Add a dollop of mayonnaise or sour cream if you like a milder flavor—and the whole job, from the time you put the water up to boil, shouldn't have taken a half hour. Serve the macaroni salad in round quart-size waxed paper containers.

For the other foods, you need only a good right arm to wield a jar or can opener. Empty them into your paper containers or dishes or onto paper plates. If you have a tin or two of nuts—into the little nut cups with them.

Setting the Table

Setting the table for a buffet that doesn't create traffic problems is easy. Try to fix it so that people can make a complete circle around the table. But arrange it so that supplies and food are picked up in some kind of logical order. Plate, bread, meat, salads, napkins, and forks make a good order. Try not to have foods that must be cut or that are hard to handle. Eating is no fun when it becomes a balancing act.

The beauty of a buffet meal is that it can be eaten anywhere. Guests serve themselves onto a single plate—they can eat leaning against a wall; sitting on the lawn—or more formally in a chair at a picnic table. When they want "seconds" they simply go back to the table for more. You or one of the youngsters can serve cold beverages in paper cups to guests where they're eating. For most people, coffee is the topper to any meal. Have a handy supply of cups for hot beverages — they usually have handles. If you have an outdoor fireplace, brew coffee right there in a percolator. If not, a kettle of boiling water can be brought from the kitchen, and instant coffee can be made on the spot.

And after all the good food and the pleasant talk it engenders, won't it be wonderful to know that cleaning up requires only the touch of a match to your used paper goods—while you sit and watch the fire in the twilight?

Picnic Fixin's

If the children are leaving early in the morning on a picnic, you can see that they pack a good nourishing lunch without getting out of bed yourself!

The night before you can slice tomatoes, hard-cooked eggs, wash the lettuce and wrap sandwich slices in waxed paper. Then first thing in the morning, the children can make their own Dagwoods to bring along.

Maine sardines are ever-popular with children, so open and drain a couple of cans, ready to provide the necessary high protein for a long day's outing.

Use Convenient Check List---

Do You Know What to Take With You on Vacation Trip?

Jefferson City, Mo. — Here's a tip that might save you a lot of misery and certainly inconvenience on your 1956 Missouri vacation. It concerns what to take with you on that trip.

It seems strange that folks could forget some of those really necessary items like the kind of clothes to take — but we get so wrapped up in planning just where we're going and what we're going to do when we get there that often we forget things.

In Missouri, a spring vacation calls for such things as a jacket for those cool evenings, some warm clothes ("just in case"), and plenty of play clothes like shorts, swimming trunks and such. In the summer, lighter clothes and sports wear will do fine — but don't forget whether it's spring, summer or fall that old clothes are needed for those fishing trips, hikes along nature trails, or horseback riding.

And don't forget those golf clubs, fishing rods and tackle boxes, tennis rackets. These "little items" are easily forgotten — but they can be irksome and even expensive if you don't remember to include them in your advance plans.

How's about making yourselves a sort of "check list" and as you load things into your luggage or trunk of your car, check them off so you'll be sure to have everything.

A sample check list of what to take with you might go something like this:

1. Clothes suitable for time of year.
2. Evening wear for "dressing up."
3. Sports equipment.
4. Medicines and prescriptions.
5. Identification papers, driver's license and such.
6. Confirmation of Reservations.
7. Road maps.
8. Cosmetics and shaving equipment.
9. Booklets and "guide books" to help you look for what to see.
10. Personal equipment — like glasses, etc.

Of course, due to the different needs of various folks, you'd have to make your own check list — and it'd do well to make another list as you check over your car—tires, battery and the like.

It's those "little things" which can add — or distract — from the enjoyment of your 1956 Missouri vacation. Why not avoid unnecessary worry and expense by beginning to plan for your trip right now.

Steeped in history is colorful Lexington, Missouri, a town which grew famous for the "battle of the hemp bales" during the Civil War. Here is pictured the Anderson House, used as a hospital during the battle. It was fired upon and fought from and the bullet holes are still to be seen in its interior. (Photo by Walker, Resources and Development.)

Easy Picnics for Children

Mother—gather your brood together—perhaps some of the neighbor's kids too, and take them to the beach or woods for a picnic. When the weather is fine, there is no better way of keeping the children amused.

And it can be a pleasant solution for you too, for today there are so many picnic aids that make it easy for a woman to manage all by herself.

Many Types of Grills

If you decide to cook hamburgers or hot dogs—and children dearly love them, there are many types of light weight grills that are simple to manage. Some types come already equipped with a sheet of aluminum foil underneath which reflects the heat of the fire up on the food. On others, foil can easily be attached under the part that holds the charcoal briquets. Using aluminum foil under the fire makes it easy to cook quickly and efficiently with a small fire.

Charcoal briquets and a special granular charcoal starter are available in food markets in convenient foil wrapped packages that are light-weight, clean and very easy to use. Just open the corner of the package, sprinkle on briquets, then sprinkle on the starter and touch a match to it. You will have a fine fire cozily burning in a matter of minutes without even getting the fingers soiled.

Aluminum foil, of course, does a fine job of handling all the picnic foods. Sandwiches, prepared ahead of time, wrapped in foil and stored in the refrigerator, then taken to the picnic scene, keep cool for an hour or longer. Such foods, good for children, as custards and puddings, fruit cut up and sugared can be spooned into little individual foil containers or custard cups. Cover and wrap them in foil and they too will stay cool.

Aluminum Foil Handy

A good way of carrying a container or bottle of milk is to wrap it in several layers of foil. Not only is it good protection against leaks, but the layers of foil are excellent insulation.

Keeping the picnic site beautiful and not leaving trash scattered on the beach or in the woods is important. Aluminum foil is easy to dispose of when the picnic is over. Children love to roll it up into little balls and these can be thrown into trash baskets. If there are no facilities available, you can always bury the little foil balls or just toss them in the picnic basket to be thrown away at home.

Foil can always be used to wrap any leftovers and it's wonderful for wrapping wet bathing suits, sandy socks and all the other paraphernalia of a day, when children have thoroughly enjoyed themselves paddling in water and scampering through grass and woods.

Red Forgiveness Doubted

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The Richmond Public Library held what it termed "Forgiveness Week" — a whole week when the library charged no fines for overdue books.

One book which turned up was "Grammar of the Arts." It was borrowed from the library 21 years ago.

A bound file of 12 anti-Communist periodicals of 1930 vintage also was turned in. It was marked "Moscow Public Library," but apparently didn't believe in "Forgiveness Week." The file, devoted to art and literature and published by Russian exiles in Manchuria, had this written on it:

"Five rubles for each day overdue. Six months overdue—Siberia. Twelve months overdue means public trial. Defendant furnished with complete confession."

Sedalian Owns, Operates One Of Top Resorts

One of the show spots on the Lake of the Ozarks is owned and operated by a former well known Sedalian, Mrs. Gold Ilgenfritz. It is the Pla-Port Resort at Osage Beach.

In conjunction with the resort Mrs. Ilgenfritz has the Club Admiral, really nice, rustic atmosphere, and overlook the big lake. She now has such an arrangement for the Club Admiral that couples, parties or groups can call there for reservations and make their plans to suit them for serving of fine foods.

Pla-Port Resort, located on Lake Road 14-A, Osage Beach, is one of the oldest and finest on the lake. It is the home of the famous inland "Lighthouse," the only privately owned and operated lighthouse in the United States.

The resort is located on a beautiful peninsula with an 1,800 foot shoreline. It has a variety of facilities for play, rest and sports recreation of all kinds.

Mrs. Ilgenfritz purchased the resort last fall and has done extensive improvements both on the resort and the Club Admiral.

Unique Picnicking

That favorite summer pastime, the picnic, soon will offer something new for outdoor eating—spread-type foods in fold-up metal tubes.

Jelly in metal tubes is now available in some sections of the country and the packaging of peanut butter in these unique air-tight squeeze containers is expected to make an appearance this year.

And under test in the laboratories of food processing firms are such other foods as fish and meat pastes, cheese spreads, mustard, catsup and mayonnaise—all readily adaptable to packaging in collapsible metal tubes.

Tubed foods long have been popular in Europe. Cream cheese, butter, condensed milk, caviar, chocolate syrup, tomato paste and a variety of other spread-type products are to be found on most store shelves. In Switzerland, 90 per cent of all mustard is packaged in metal tubes.

The obvious advantage for picnickers of food in tubes is in the matter of convenience. They're lightweight, sanitary and easy to handle.

Tubed foods also are said to be ideal for school and work lunch boxes and for hiking and camping trips.

Watch for Outdoor Hazards on Vacation

Outdoor living has its own hazards. And if knowledge is power, here's what you'll have to watch out for:

SUNBURN: Large overdoses of sunlight can lead to a bad burn. Take sunshine gradually. Blondes are especially susceptible to bad burns. Reflections from sand and water, high altitudes and direct rays (noontime) increase the burning possibilities. Take only 20 minutes of sun the first day out and increase the time by about 15 minutes each succeeding day.

PRICKLY HEAT. This hot-weather rash is caused by plugged pores. Some medical authorities recommend a drying agent like Camolliens.

POISON IVY. Best preventive is recognition of the three red leaves and avoidance of them. If you have come in contact with the leaves, wash the affected area immediately with brown soap.

HAY FEVER. Sufferers from this allergy to plant pollen go at relief in many ways: injections, antihistamines, like Biomydrin. For easier sleeping at home, good air filtration or air conditioning takes much pollen out of the air.

Traveling Is Inexpensive If Careful Plans Are Made

John Foster Dulles has nothing on Carol Lane, the women's travel director for Shell Oil. She hops about the country, covering about 60,000 miles a year. Her travel tips are worth heeding.

She suggests a simple way to save time, money and protect youthful digestions is to "prepare" breakfast the night before.

"If you're stopping at a motel or motor court, buy your food for breakfast before you settle for the night," she says. "Fruit, milk, dry cereal, rolls and a thermos of coffee constitute an ideal, easy-to-prepare breakfast.

"Lunch on the road can be a 'pick-up' affair, too," she goes on. "Just stop off at a roadside grocery or food shop and buy all the fixings for quick sandwiches. Add milk, soft drinks and fruit and you have a light, but nutritious, meal.

"I've never known a child, and I'm sure you haven't either," Miss Lane confides, "who confines his eating to mealtimes. There's nothing wrong with snacks as long as they are planned carefully so as not to upset the meal routine. Fruit is excellent.

"Steer clear of too much candy or sweets. Raisins, dates, apricots and raw carrots are better for munching."

Miss Lane has found that many families plan their big travel meal at night. They conserve on money and time during the day then they splurge on a big meal at dinner time.

For these families, Miss Lane offers her precautions for picking a good restaurant.

"When I spot a restaurant from the highway, I always drive by slowly to make sure it has a clean outward appearance. If it has a lot of trucks and cars with out-of-state licenses, I drive on. This may be a sign that local residents eat elsewhere.

"Once inside, I let myself be led by the nose. Good food smells good. Then I quickly use my eyes to see if the tablecloths are clean, the sugar bowls covered and the catsup bottles not flowing over. Such things often reveal kitchen conditions."

Time For TV

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — When George Shabatura, 11, stopped for an innocent look at a swimming muskrat, he became bogged in soft mud. Within minutes there arrived a rescue squad, a fire department ladder company and park board rescue squads. George was pulled out with the complaint that the whole commotion made him miss his favorite TV show.

Zippy Picnic Favorite

Picnics and outdoor eating provide us with pleasant times to renew old friendships and plan for future fun. Try dressing up an old eating acqquaintance such as pineapple, cream cheese or ham with a zippy compliment, American Blue cheese. The subtle sharpness of the cheese picks up the flavor of the added condiments and combines to make an all summer-long favorite. Try the Blue Cheese Ham Rolls, and you'll find this delightfully piquant flavor will perk up sandwiches, too.

Blue Cheese Pineapple Cream Sandwiches

(Makes 4 Sandwiches)

½ cup crumbled American Blue cheese (about 3 ounces)
1 3-ounce package cream cheese, softened.
½ cup drained, canned, crushed pineapple
8 slices buttered bread

Combine cheese and pineapple. Beat until well blended. Spread on bread to make sandwiches.

Blue Cheese Ham Rolls

(Makes 8 sandwiches)

¾ cup crumbled American Blue cheese
¼ cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
2 tablespoons chili sauce
8 slices boiled ham
8 frankfurter rolls, split
Mayonnaise

Combine cheese, onion, mustard and chili sauce; mix well. Spread on ham and roll up jelly-roll fashion. Spread frankfurter rolls lightly with mayonnaise. Serve with cheese-ham rolls.

How do you rate as a tourist?

In case you didn't know it, people who work at resorts like to place tourists in categories. The results are seldom flattering, but often are bitingly true.

A man who has done this for years is Lester B. Dill, who operates Merimec Caverns, the world's only five-story cave, at Santon, Mo. Millions of people tour caves annually, and Dill has broken them down into 10 distinct classes.

Though they are meant for cave tourists only, the classes apply to others, as well, with only a few exceptions.

Which, if any, is you?

1. The Scared One. He's afraid the cave will fall while he's inside. The cave is 100,000,000 years old and has withstood all the world's earthquakes, but he is clearly frightened.

2. Tarzan. Is out to unearth or break cave formations just to prove how strong he is. A most dangerous practice, which gives The Scared One heart failure.

3. The Uninformed One. Wants to know why a cave can't be built near his home-town, so he won't have to travel to see it.

4. The Informed One. In his opinion, he knows more than all the guides put together. Actually knows very little.

5. The Tired One. Complains he is exhausted every 25 feet in the tour, and wants the tour held up while he rests for 25 minutes. Usually the youngest in the group.

6. Superman. He's in the vast minority. After the two-hour, 3-mile tour is over, wants to keep going without any rest.

7. Camera Bug. He's more interested in taking pictures to show the folks back home than he is to see things himself.

8. District Attorney. Asks questions incessantly and never waits for an answer. Just keeps asking to hear himself talk.

9. Souvenir Hunter. More interested in loading up with souvenirs from the shop than in anything else. Often so engrossed in buying that he winds up missing the tour.

10. Cave Addict. So thrilled at the thought of being in caves that he comes many times each year, takes several tours each visit.

Big Deposit

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Lee Marmon dropped in at an Albuquerque bank to make a deposit. The teller politely handed him a blank and suggested he fill it out. He did so, right at the window. She gasped. It was a deposit of $153,000. When the teller got her breath back, Marmon, treasurer of the Laguna Tribe, explained the money was from the tribal fund.

Wear Shorts If You Want--

After Hot Day, Serve Meal In Backyard Comfortably

By Isabel Du Bois

When the day has been warm and busy . . . do the obvious. Dine out. Not in a fashionable, air cooled eating spot . . . that means getting all dressed up.

The easiest and most relaxing way to "dine out" after a hard day's work is in sneakers and shorts . . . in your own backyard.

Serve supper picnic style on the porch, in the yard or patio. Even if it's no more than a dozen steps from the kitchen door the family will enjoy it and so will you.

And don't worry about staging an impromptu affair even if you've invited the nighbors to supper. Impromptu picnics are always much more fun. Besides, the planning of a picnic menu is easy because of the endless variety of dishes that can be served. Another point to remember: Most men dearly love to cook out-of-doors though they wouln't be caught dead in the kitchen.

Since there's more than one way to stage an impromptu picnic what you serve depends upon your mood. But bear in mind the one prime rule about picnic food. You can never have too much.

If you'd planned to serve steak or chicken indoors don't change your plans because you've now decided to eat outside. Load up a tray and move your kitchen to the backyard. Brush the steak with butter and grill over a bed of hot coals. Chicken is best dipped in a barbecue sauce. For a savory sauce heat together ½ cup vinegar, 1 cup water, ¼ cup butter and 1½ teaspoons salt. Use for basting the chicken during the cooking period. And remember to turn frequently to prevent burning.

For an elegantly simple meal grill several slices of ham. Brush with a mixture of prepared mustard, lemon juice and grape jelly. Baste the ham with the sauce during broiling. Canned potatoes (the small white variety that come whole) give you a head start for an appetizing potato salad. They also brown beautifully in butter in a skillet over an outdoor fire. And the aroma of potatoes sizzling in hot butter, and that of hot coffee perking will linger long in the memory.

Bread, of course, is a must. No picnic menu would be complete without it. Use the same favorite baker's loaf as you serve indoors or ask Dad to stop at your favorite bakery for some rolls or French bread on his way home. Simply spread the slices with melted butter or garlic butter and wrap the loaf in aluminum foil. Place on a not too hot part of the grill until heated through. Rolls can be heated in the same manner. If you like prepare individual bread packets and let each person unwrap his own.

If you feel like eating out-of-doors but cooking in the kitchen here's a perfectly practical plan. Open a can of lobster or shrimp and you'll have a sea food salad in nothing flat. Or serve cold ham just as it comes from the can and heat some baked beans to go with it. You can even make a quick casserole dish if you want something hot.

Or serve easy to make and easy to eat sandwiches. As a picnic food they can't be beat. Remember though, bread is two-thirds of most sandwiches so use a high quality loaf. And to make the sandwich eating more fun have a variety of breads as well as fillings. Choose from whole wheat, plain rye and salty rye. Pumpernickel is good, too, and of course, you'll want some made from that old standby, enriched white.

Fillings can run the gamut. Merely take stock of the refrigerator and cupboard shelves and you are certain to come up with several the whole family likes. One more tip on sandwiches: Spread the filling to the edges of the bread. . .and be generous. Nothing tastes better than a sandwich that is generously spread.

For an impromptu picnic proceed as you would to prepare any simple, tasty dinner. And be assured it is bound to be a success from start to finish . . . from the start because no long hours have been spent in planning and preparing the food, to the finish because picnicking is an expression of a casual way of living which everyone loves.

Uncle It Is

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP)—The whole class cried "uncle" at the Little Red Schoolhouse on Patagonia Road when State Rep. Robert Hathaway came to speak at the graduation exercises. The only member of the class was Glenn Hathaway, the speaker's nephew.

Thirst Quenchers

Do you get hungrier or thirstier at a picnic? Moot question, isn't it? Apple juice makes a happy solution because it's a thirst-quencher in itself and goes well with just about any kind of food. Fill the cooler with the individual six-ounce cans of apple juice, take along a can-opener puncher and a supply of straws or paper cups. You're set for the day!

If you'd like something pretty and refreshing to serve in tall glasses on the lawn you'll like these apple juice cocktails accompanied by a plate of cookies:

Apple Juice 'N' Lime

Add two tablespoons of lime juice to four cups of chilled apple juice. Pour into glasses and garnish each with a lime slice. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Apple Juice 'N' Ginger Ale

Combine three cups of chilled apple juice with one and a half cups of cold ginger ale. Pour over ice cubes into tall glasses, garnish each with a long-stemmed maraschino cherry. Makes four servings. (It's better to make additional quantities as needed than to open the ginger ale in advance.)

Backyard Fad Is New Hawaiian 'Lanai'

The latest fad in back-yard outdoor living is one which is borrowed from balmy Hawaii. It's the comfortable, useful "lanai," a sort of glorified porch where outdoors and indoors mingle.

American Builder Magazine describes a lanai as always having a roof and being enclosed on three sides. It serves as an outdoor living room, and is often an extension of the living room proper.

Built for casual living, a lanai is a first cousin to the patio and terrace. But because of the roof and sides, it affords more protection from weather. And while patios and terraces are usually paved with asphalt, brick, flagstone or concrete tiles, a lanai is more apt to be surfaced with either linoleum or cork.

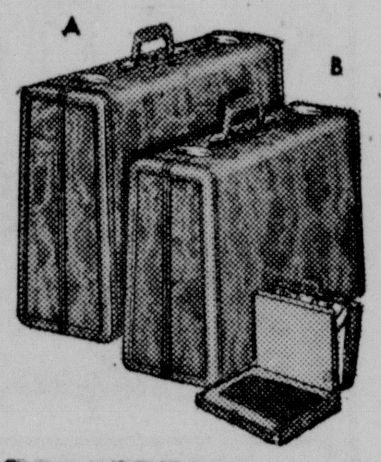

Some floor plans provide for lanais adjoining the kitchen and dining room, or even one of the bedrooms. The outdoor space beyond often becomes the setting for a garden, croquet lawn or swimming pool. The overall effect is one of bringing the lovely outdoors right inside the home.

Usefulness of 'Paper Age'---

Carefree Picnics Are Most Enjoyed by Tired People

The fragrance of meat sizzling on a bed of red-hot charcoal, coupled with the tangy scent of a pine forest, stirs, even in the most confirmed indoor enthusiast's breast, a longing for the great outdoors. No matter where America lives, city or country, we like the casual picnic atmosphere that combines fresh air, comfort and good food.

To coin a phrase, today might some day be called the "Paper Age," because paper, as a result of technical improvements in this mid-century, goes everywhere and does almost everything. Whether you have the butler decked out in a chef's hat turning the steak or whether you lasso dad into grilling the franks after you got the fire going, paper has its place in your picnic budget and plans. Paper on the picnic will save you time, trouble and headaches from the minute you open the picnic basket until pack-up time.

Open Road Beckons

Succumbing to the lure of the open road, mother, only too anxious to escape from her hot kitchen, has only to rely on paper to pack vitamin-filled fruits and salads in waxed paper cartons, wrap the sandwiches in waxed paper, maybe put a hot dish in the thermos box for sharpened appetites, fill the thermos, and jump into the car.

Heavens to Elizabeth, Mother! You almost forgot the best little time savers known to woman at picnic time—paper napkins and all the rest of the paper family. There are paper napkins for everyday neatness and cleanliness, paper cups for hot and cold beverages with handles for secure holds by small hands, paper table covers to dress-up the table, and plastic-coated paper plates for hot or cold food that won't buckle or tip when loaded. That's what your picnic needs to make it gay and carefree.

A summer holiday picnic calls for a Fourth of July theme with white paper napkins printed in red, and blue and matching paper cups and plates on a bright red or bright blue table cover. Nothing could be prettier or more exciting than our national colors in a festive setting.

Colorful Settings

For a just-any-old-hot-day picnic, why not cool things off with a pastel picnic for the family? A multi-color table set in pale blue, green and pink on a yellow table cover is different, cool and restful. And it's sure to rouse those down-in-the-dumps summer appetites.

Up to this point, paper has been a welcome guest at your picnic. The end of picnic time, though, is when our gay companion really comes into its own. All mother has to do is have dad repack the thermos bottles, pick up her casserole and whatever non-disposable items you brought and you're done. Then using paper picnic goods to the utmost, just bundle disposable items like paper napkins, plates, cups, containers and sandwich wrappings into the paper table cover and everything is ready for the nearby trash barrel neatly and speedily. The paper goods that have proved a boon to you during the picnic won't be a bane to other picnic lovers with this efficient clean-up system.

For hurry-up outdoor meals pork and beans are a reliable mainstay. Many like them cold right from the can. If your appetite can wait a minute, canned pork and beans can be heated speedily and tidily in the can. Remember, remove the label and either open or puncture the top of the can first. Then just rest the can in the hot coals and try to be patient.

Check-ups for the chef. Build your fire early enough so that it will have burned down to coals by the time you are ready to cook the meal. Keep the fire near the front of the grill for cooking meat. There will be enough heat at the back for making coffee, warming the buns, and other hot foods.

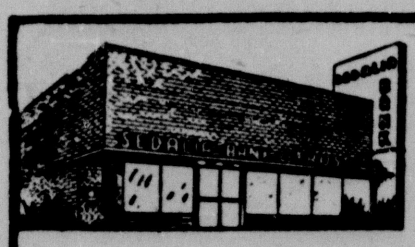

In olden times, the crow was termed a bird of evil omen because of its black plumage.

World On Wheels Eats---

Motor Tourists Can Eat At Nation's Highway Parks

By HELEN REED
Home Economist
Bakers of America Program

You'll take the High Road and I'll take the Low Road and we'll meet, not on "the bonnie banks of Loch Lomond," but at the first picnic site west of the Mississippi on highway 30, or perhaps on highway 1 at the first picnic site south of the Virginia-North Carolina line. But whatever the road, high or low, or whatever the number of the highway, the roadside picnic site will be a rendezvous for thousands of Americans this year. An increasing number of motorized tourists will be traveling our highways, and this year there'll be more bicyclists pedalling their way to pleasure and to better health.

Adequate Picnic Sites

For motorists and bicyclists both, and also for the rugged hiker, picnicking is a popular and joyous way of dining. Recognizing this, state highway commissions, and park departments have been providing picnic sites both adequate and beautiful. Along the eastern shore, the highway picnic site has been a favorite spot for several seasons; in the midwest, with the many roads paralleling its great rivers, there are picturesque and delightful sites.

Texas, along its principal roads, has built beautiful and elaborate stone fireplaces set in effectively landscaped areas with tables and benches and other picnic equipment. In the Northwest, there are picnic sites chosen so that motorists may enjoy dramatic and breath-taking views, when they stop for their meals. Even along the Alcan Highway, there are some picnic sites, with tables and benches. The world on wheels likes to stop and picnic.

The traditional prepared-at-home meal remains the picnic favorite, but new picnic patterns also are being followed. Favorite foods are assembled at home, and carried to the picnic site to be made into sandwiches there. Breads, buns, rolls, with meats, cheeses and a variety of spreads form the basis of the sandwiches, with each making his own favorites.

Where fireplaces are available, the grilled steaks and hamburgers, the kabob the roasted corn on the cob and the baked potatoes are items for which breads, heated to a satisfying perfection, are the necessary accompaniments. The long loaves of French and Italian breads can be slashed diagonally and spreads, or thin slices of meat and cheese, used for fillings. Another of the new picnic populars is the "chunkette." The hard crusted breads are cut into chunks, covered with a soft spread and toasted on skewers. They also are good, if wrapped in foil and grilled on the hot coals. The special rolls for hamburgers and for frankfurters also are made particularly appetizing by heating.

Nutritious Sandwiches

Enriched bread, spread with butter or margarine, and made into a chicken, ham, tongue or sliced cheese sandwich is always a picnic staple. In addition to its appetite and taste satisfying qualities, it gives the motorist, the bicyclist or the hiker, the nutriments which he needs, on his days of vacation and recreation, as well as on his work days.

And a word to the fire builders—use as much caution extinguishing the fires as care in laying them. It has been recommended that an hour be allowed to have a fire that will provide a controlable, steady temperature for best results in grilling and roasting. It is better to start with a small amount of fuel, and add the charcoal, briquettes or wood as needed. When the meal is finished and the picnickers are ready to continue on their way the fire should be completely extinguished, with no glowing coals, or flames. Loose earth, a pail of water, and the fire extinguisher from one's car, all are helps in assuring complete extinguishing of the fire.

Comfortable Sport Shoes

No matter how you play outdoors—at golf, hiking, riding or just sitting in a comfortable chair with a long, cool glass—life will be much more comfortable underfoot if you're wearing the proper shoes.

The tanning and shoe industries have gotten together this year to provide leather shoes that are light, low cut and of soft construction.

A brand-new development — for both men and women—is woven leather, which has pretty much supplanted mesh in outdoor shoes. The woven construction allows large amounts of air to be pumped in and out of your foot each time you walk and also makes for a shoe that is unusually lightweight and pliable.

If you want to make sure that your feet won't give way under you this summer, here are a few recommendations by a nationally known foot specialist.

First make sure your shoes are long enough and wide enough to accommodate your feet without cramping and with room to wiggle your toes.

Next, examine your shoe materials. See that all your shoes are made of leather, top and bottom — sturdy enough to cushion your feet both on city pavements and rural walks, yet flexible enough to give them freedom of movement at the same time.

Reverse Action

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Mead Miller, senior Oklahoma County excise board member, has been receiving complaints from a friend for weeks that his taxes were too high.

Finally, Miller sent out appraisers to check the friend's property.

He reported back to the friend: "You're paying less than the regular valuation. We'll have to raise your taxes."

Try Antique Coffee Brew

When suddenly separated from the plugs and appliances so dear to the hearts of the utility people, do you crack up? Do you panic at the sight of a stove propelled by wood? Do you become completely unnerved when faced with a frying pan that has no electric cord?

Then travel slowly down the road to relearning the simple virtues, the abilities that made our grandmothers strong — and dead at 31.

A coffeepot is just that. It has a handle for holding, a middle section generally known as the pot, to contain the beverage, and a lip for pouring. It does not have strainers, sieves, cloth filters, lights that light up, switches to turn on, stems, receptacles, upper and lower bowls or a feedback. It sometimes, if it is a very frivolous model, has a top. But that is absolutely all.

And coffee is made in such an item. If you are confused, this sort of pot is generally dark gray with black speckles and a sooty bottom. You shall know it by these marks alone.

How does one concoct that plasma of beverages, coffee, in such a simple unit?

A French-Canadian guide says: "One heaping tablespoon of coffee per cup of water. Put the pot on the campfire and sit on the pot until the heat is too great to endure. Take the pot off the fire and pour the coffee."

Other experts scoff at this technique. They recommend one generously rounded tablespoon of regular grind coffee for each cup of water. Heat the pot and measure freshly boiling water into it. Measure coffee into boiling water. Allow both to boil for a few minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove pot and let it stand in a warm place for three minutes. Serve promptly.

Those who think yearningly of the old coffeepot realize that this method trier a produce a coffee-from-the-electric-pot result from the boiling pot. For this way leaves out the egg, the egg, you can't have boiled coffee without the egg.

Some old - timers pack the grounds into the bottom of the pot with egg yolks which forms a sort of hard mass after the hot water is added. You may try this. It makes the pot hard to clean and accounts for the high mortality of coffeeepots at church suppers.

Others simply throw the shells in the made coffee to settle the grounds. You pick them out before serving, of course. They may then be given to the kiddies for throwing about.

Whizzes, bypassing the egg or shell, say that the basic factors are using boiling water to begin with, reasonably accurate measurement and not too long to boil.

Too long on the fire, these jolly fellows say, and the end result is excellent for removing paint from like boiled coffee. There are those old sourdoughs who think of anything else as something akin to tea.

Pictures Have Many Memories

July is picnic month, filled with moments of fun and excitement. And, as in the words of the song, "you'll have these moments to remember" — if you take picnic pictures.

You don't need an expensive professional camera nor do you need to be a practiced expert to get picnic pictures that will come alive every time you and your family and friends look at them. These days even the most simple cameras take excellent pictures. Just a little attention to your picture-taking will result in snapshots that will vividly recapture July's picnic fun in the middle of December, and for years to come.

Perhaps the most important tip to picnic picture-takers is: Don't pose people staring into the camera. You have enough "family portraits" at home; This is a picnic, an occasion of activity, so show everybody doing things. Mother dishing out potato salad. Betty and Billy bringing wood for the campfire. Dad holding a hot dog and taking a swig of soda pop. The more natural the pictures are, the more lively and interesting they'll be.

Try planning your pictures in sequence. As the family prepares to start out, get a shot of the kids lifting the big picnic basket into the back of the car. At the picnic ground, capture bits of action that tell a story—spreading the checkered cloth in the ground, unpacking the lunch, kindling the fire.

Speaking of the campfire, shots after dark—if the picnic lasts that long — are even more interesting than daytime campfire pictures. With short time exposures, dramatic nocturnal scenes of the group singing around the fire can be taken by the firelight alone. Also, a simple flash attachment enables you to snap pictures after dark as easily as in the daytime.

Another tip—and it's surprising how many people forget this—is to follow carefully the instructions that come wrapped around every roll of film. Beach pictures, for instance, must be treated as bright, not average photographic subjects, and the instructions will tell you to use a shorter speed or smaller lens in order to compensate for the high reflecting qualities of an expanse of sand.

Still another suggestion; if you're driving to the picnic site, don't put your camera and film in the glove or trunk compartment of the car. Continuous heat isn't good for film. Remember also that if you're going out into the country or to the beach, to bring along extra rolls of film. You might run out of film when the funs gets the most photogenic, and there won't be a store nearby to buy more.

So, for your next outing, along with the picnic basket to keep the sandwiches fresh, and the thermos jug to keep the drinks cool, remember to bring your camera to keep your memories warm —on film.

First Aid Remedy: Common Baking Soda

FOR FIRST AID: BAKING SODA

Poison ivy, mosquito bites, sunburn and overeating . . . they're occupational hazards of one of our most pleasurable pursuits, picnic. Since at least one member of the family is apt to contact one of these minor maladies, it's wise to prepare yourself for on-the-spot treatment by packing a box of baking soda in your picnic hamper.

Pour a little soda in the palm of your hand. Add just enough water to form a paste. Apply the paste to the stinging, itching bite and the sting and itch disappear, for the mild alkali of the soda counteracts the bite's acidity. The same treatment is good if you detect a spot of poison ivy. The baking soda spread over the area that's under suspicion emulsifies the oils from the plant and helps neutralize the poison.

As for sunburn, if it starts turning pink and sore before you head for home, apply the paste gently to the affected area. When you reach home, add ½ pound baking soda to a tub of tepid water, then sit and relax. For especially painful areas, like behind the knees, on the shoulders and back, apply a paste of baking soda and water. Then cover with sterile gauze kept moist with a solution of baking soda and water, about three tablespoons soda to a quart of water.

And before you leave the picnic site, you'll be sure your bonfire is completely out if you toss baking soda on the embers. It extinguishes the fire by generating carbonic acid which temporarily envelops the flames and shuts off the air supply or oxygen.

Trees are growing 110 feet above the ground, out of the top of the courthouse tower in Greensburg, Ind.

Traditional Hot Dog Pleases Everyone for Family Picnics

The fact that July is both Picnic Month and National Hot Dog Month is a natural coincidence. The question of which came first, the picnic or the hot dog, is like asking about the chicken and the egg. We know that hot dogs date back to about 1550 when the first one put in an appearance in Frankfurt, Germany, but other similar sausage products were enjoyed by the ancient Greeks. It is not too difficult to conjure a vision of Socrates and other Greek thinkers enjoying a picnic as they discussed their philosophies with their followers.

But, whenever the picnic and the hot dog came together, we know that the marriage has been a lasting one. The traditional picnic hot dog is the staple of millions of outdoor parties every summer. Steaming hot in a fresh, crisp roll and smothered with mustard and relish it is the all time favorite.

International Flavor

For an appealing variation on the traditional frank, why not give your next hot dog picnic an international flavor and let the family members select their own hot dog embellishments in the confines of the backyard.

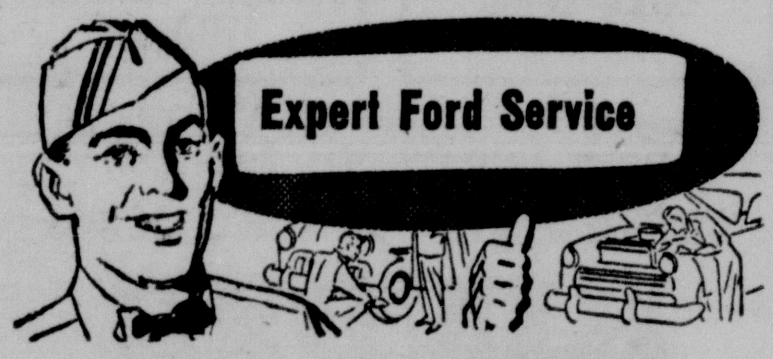

Simply grill the franks as usual on the barbecue or held on a stick over the fire (TIP: make a shallow spiral slash along the frank and its size will be almost doubled) and then replace them in toasted buns. A variety of tangy sauces and garnishes provides the picnic with a United Nations flavor and gives guests a chance for some wild experiments.

These should include a spicy bowl of chili, sharp cheddar cheese, hot Italian peppers, chopped onion, and grated Roquefort cheese. Usually one of these items is sufficient to make the hot dog an international delight. Various combinations also can be made up, but, of course, a certain amount of restraint is in order.

By adding chili to the hot dog sandwich you have the popular Chihuahua. Strips of sharp Cheddar cheese placed along the length of the hot dog make it an Oxford Special, while grated Roquefort takes the hot dog acros the English channel and turns it into a French Frank. Addition of the hot Italian peppers takes the hot dog even further south and makes it a Pisani Pup. For added zest several peppers can be pinched and their juice allowed to run over the hot dog and into the roll. Addition of chopped onions alone turns the sandwich into a Poodle.

The bluffs overlooking the Mississippi River at Clarksville form the highest point on the mighty river. From the lookout tower at the mountain's peak (which, incidentally is atop an ancient Indian mound) a person can see for many miles on a clear day. Telescope viewers are available at the tower. Checklist of Three Points For Outdoor Vacationing

It's worth pointing out, now that millions of families are making plans to vacation close to nature, that ourdoor living isn't naturally healthy. It just seems that way because man has developed better weapons for survival than the thousands of animals, plants, insects, and wee beasts who dispute the earth with him.

Here's a checklist of precautions before you go camping, fishing, mountain climbing, sailing, or picnicking:

1. Accidents are the biggest hazard, and the danger is greater if you are going to a strange environment or engaging in an unfamiliar activity. It's well worth spending a three-cent stamp to write to the National Safety Council, 425 No. Michigan Avenue, Chicago 11, Ill., and ask them for safety literature on the activity you intend to pursue.

Lockjaw or tetanus is one of the most tragic hazards of any deep wound suffered outdoors. Luckily, you can eliminate this risk by inoculation before your excursion. Your children are more apt to have this protection than you are, because Tri-Immunol, a combination vaccine against diphtheria, whooping cough, and tetanus is now routinely given to school children.

The safest thing to do is to report every puncture wound to a doctor, whether you have been immunized or not. If you have had tetanus shots, the doctor will give you a booster of tetanus toxoid.

2. Plants can hurt you too. Their pollen accounts for a large part of the allergies which make thousands of people miserable in the summer. We don't understand as much as we'd like to know about the way pollens and other "foreign proteins" react with elements in human blood to stimulate manufacture of a body chemical that makes you wheeze, sniffle, and tear. Scientists are hoping to find some drug that will combat all allergies by stopping the manufacture of the offending chemical. Antihistamine drugs sometimes help.

Simplest precaution, of course, is to find out which plants don't like you and avoid them, a project which will involve you deeply in botany if you plan an extended field trip. Your doctor can help in the hunt by trying substances through skin tests, and when it's found he may be able to prescribe a drug for you which will gradually desensitize you to that particular substance.

Poison ivy and poison oak are an easier problem to handle although they afflict 350,000 people a year. Unfortunately, there's poison ivy in almost every part of the United States.

If you recognize poison ivy after you've romped through it, scrub up with yellow laundry soap several times, rinsing under running water to remove as much of the oily poison as you can. Until recently, victims of poison ivy had to grin and bear the maddening itch, as best they could. Now there is an ointment called Rhulicream which soothes and cools the inflammation and deadens the pain with a mild skin anesthetic. Rhulicream can be bought without a prescription and it's worth while tucking a tube into your knapsack when you set out to explore unfamiliar woodlands. It is good for insect bites and other minor skin irritations you are likely to encounter. Another is called Zotox and is reported to be mighty effective.

3. Insects are closer to inheriting the earth than city dwellers imagine. Bees, wasps, hornets, sand flies, mosquitoes, gnats and spiders are the commonest, though by no means the most dangerous insect enemies. Avoidance is the better part of strategy for the human invaders.

Nest builders — the bees, ants, wasps, spiders — will keep their distance unless you awkwardly attack their homes. Gnats, mosquitoes, sand flies and other insects eager to nourish themselves on you or your blood can sometimes be repelled by chemicals which smell bad to them. Screen doors are practical for tents and cottages, and there are scores of new insecticides to fight off an insect invasion if you are camping long enough in one place to make a stand against them at all. Your druggist is the handiest source of advice on the many insecticides now available, or you can write to the U.S. Department of Agriculture for further information.

Bicycles Make Vacation Tours For Young, Old

With summer months just around the calendar, millions of Americans—almost 22,000,000 at last count by the Bicycle Institute of America—will be getting ready for biking fun. At the same time, an estimated 300,000 new riders will be using bikes for the first time between May and September.

Knowing what to look for in a bicycle, plus a knowledge of correct riding methods will prove valuable pleasure insurance for both new and old cycling fans.

Before buying, decide where you want your bike to take you. Planning long-distance bike trips? Then choose one of the lightweight or middleweight wheels. On the other hand, a standard balloon-tired bike is perfect for neighborhood cycling, pike-shopping and for pedal picnics not too far from home.

If you live in hilly country or are looking forward to many miles of riding, by all means have your bicycle equipped with a gear-shift. It is relatively inexpensive and will smooth out the toughest hill.

Bike sizes today are measured by wheel dimension in models that go from 16-inch to 20, 24 and 26-inch. The 26 is standard for teengaers and adults; has adjustable seats and handlebars to fit it perfectly to the ride.

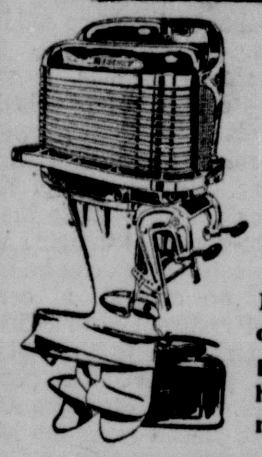

The most common mistakes are made in adjusting the seat and handlebars. You're sitting at the right height when, with your leg straight and the pedal at "six o'clock," your heel is firmly on the pedal. Handlebars are correctly positioned if you have to lean forward silghtly to grip them.

For maximum power, keep the ball of the foot—rather than the instep or heel—on the pedal. Knees should be kept close to the frame, not only because it looks more graceful, but because the knee joint will work best in that normal position.

These tips and an awareness of the safety rules, can bring months of outdoor pleasure on bike hikes, camping trips, hostel tours, travel and pedal picnicking.
